INTERESTING TO DOCTORS. Dr. Harvey R. Gaylord and Dr. Charles Cary of Buffalo leave for Germany on Saturday to investigate results obtained by German scientists applying to cancer X-rays of extraordinary high power. Dr. Gaylord is director of the New York State Institute for Research in Malignant Disease. He and Dr. Cary will bring back the facts that may be important to all doctors.

IMPORTANT TO EDITORS, especially little ones. News paper from Finland and Sweden, good quality, is offered, freight prepaid to this country, at 4 cents, in amounts running up to 40,000 tons. The market in England and Australia has practically collapsed, hence the cheap price at which this paper is urged upon buyers. This will come as a sort of "light in the darkness, sailor," to small publishers that have wondered lately who really owned their newspapers.

Northcliffe, not exactly stagnant, will print newspapers on, and distribute by parachute from, the flying machines that travel between London and Paris.

Leaving England, the newspapers will be printed in English; coming back, in French. Wireless will collect the news as the machines go along. That is progress. The flying days are here.

Man's foolish self-approval depends not upon his size. One Mah, twenty-eight inches tall, about as high as your knee, avoiding forty pounds and eighty-three years old, tells a judge at Laporte, Ind., that she would like a divorce because his wife, five and half feet high and white, went off to Pennsylvania on a visit without getting his permission. Think about that, proud man!

Many children are injured among the prosperous by their mothers' anxiety and excessive idleness before birth. Learn something from Mrs. Gurley. She heard a splash; her child, three years old, was at the bottom of the well. No one to help, she climbed down, miraculously, and climbed up again, pressing legs and elbows against the side of the wall, bringing the child safe, with her.

Three days later a little girl was born, perfectly healthy, weighing seven pounds, and without any birth-mark of an old oaken bucket or anything of that kind.

Prosperous mothers should first consult a doctor, then exercise reasonably and wisely.

Millions of mothers, unfortunately, are compelled to exercise unreasonably and unwisely before confinement. Their children also suffer. But that is another story, not so interesting in our kind of civilization.

Well-paid judges have actually decided that it is not constitutional to protect such mothers by law from night work and excessive labor.

Sentiment and justice are strange. Lonnie Eaton committed murder. Without hesitation he was sentenced to hang. Nobody fussed about that.

The sheriff, busy, forgot to hang him on the day fixed. Now they won't hang him at all. Imprisonment for life instead. How would you analyse that?

It is a good thing, of course, whenever the public refrains from setting the example to the murderer by capital punishment. What about the "sentiment" involved?

Henry Dameron, poor young man, worked in the Virginia mountains for ten dollars a month, on his uncle's farm, and dreamed of finding a fortune in the ground. The other day, plowing, he turned up gold and silver coins worth more than fourteen thousand dollars.

Ancient German law, see the second part of Goethe's "Faust," gave the farmer everything turned up with his plow. All treasure deeper than that belonged to the emperor. The idea was to encourage farmers to plow deep, to produce more and be taxed more.

One interesting moral in the farmer's case. Thousands that would not work hard for a living will now work desperately, digging for more treasure. They will find nothing and just ordinary hard work would have given them all they need.

DESERTED FAMILY IN NEW YORK

Magnuson, Missing With $2000, Telephones He Is About to Sail for Sweden

By International News Service.

New York, April 22.—James Magnuson, forty-one years old, a retired business man of No. 5C Alga street, Worcester, Mass., disappeared in 42d street on the eve of sailing with his wife and three children for Sweden, his native country.

Early today a man who said he was Magnuson called up a New York newspaper and said he had been robbed of $2,000, but still planned to sail.

Magnuson recently retired from the stamping business because of ill health and he and Mrs. Magnuson and their children, two boys, six and ten years old, and a daughter, three years old, came here Tuesday morning prepared to sail on the Frederick VIII.

The family spent yesterday in sightseeing and early last night dined at a restaurant in Forty-second street between Sixth avenue and Broadway.

When they left the restaurant Magnuson complained that he was feeling ill and, leaving his wife and children standing in the street in front of the restaurant, started towards a drug store at Sixth avenue and Forty-second street to get some medicine. That was the last seen of him.

After waiting two hours Mrs. Magnuson and her children began to cry. Patrolman Frank Berger of the West Forty-seventh street station made a search of the vicinity in the hope of finding the missing man.

The woman and her children spent the night in the Norwegian home in City Hall place.

Mrs. Magnuson told the police that her husband had $1,200 sewed in the lining of his coat, between $800 and $900 in his pocket and jewelry valued at about $400. He also had their tickets for passage to Sweden.

When the man calling himself Magnuson called up the newspaper he reported that in wandering round the city he had met two men and two women with whom he had several drinks. Later he had found himself alone with most of his money gone.

GRISWOLD THREATENS TO EJECT LOMASNEY

Martin M. Lomasney was threatened with ejection from the "L" hearing today by Senator Griswold of Greenfield, chairman, when George S. Taft, the committee counsel, concluded his examination of former Senator McKnight. Griswold had announced members of the committee would be allowed to question McKnight. Lomasney strode forward and cried, "Mr. Chairman." Chairman Griswald ordered him to sit down, but he continued approaching until Griswold called for messengers to eject him. Lomasney then slipped down into a seat and the hearing was resumed.

ARREST GIRLS IN STRIKE BATTLE

Garment Workers Use Pepper and Pull Hair in Summer Street Fight

A battle between garment workers, striking and employed, at the corner of Summer and Hawley streets, in which hair was pulled and pepper thrown, ended when the police arrested two young women today.

They were Josephine Madzok of No. 12 Parkman street and Marie LaStella, No. 25 Cambridge street, strikers, charged with assault and battery on Lena Garmon, who works at No. 43 Hawley street.

According to Patrolmen Smith and McCluskey, who made the arrest, Lena and her friends, after being attacked with pepper, administered a sound thrashing to the other women.

SHOTS FIRED IN CHASE OF DORCHESTER BOY

Discovered emerging from a rear window of the Atlantic & Pacific tea store, No. 43 Neponset avenue, Dorchester today, Daniel Gleason, 14 years old, of King street, Dorchester, was captured after a chase in which three shots were fired. Gleason was found by Patrolman O'Connell hiding under a piazza at No. 50 Neponset avenue. He was arraigned in the Dorchester Court and, being a juvenile, was held until May 5 in $500. According to the police, Gleason and older companions stole 21 packages of crackers.

BOUND AND LEFT UNDER TREE, DECLARES WIFE

Worcester, April 22.—Testimony that her husband bound her hand and foot and left her beneath a tree aided in securing a divorce for Mrs. Alice V. Wells of Barre from Charles P. Wells. Mrs. Wells was awarded the custody of four minor children, with alimony of $12.50 a week.

Tortured by a Husband's Grim Silence

A wife tells, in the daily pages of her diary, of the three years of maddening days and nights—exclusively in next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

"TNT — R. F. D. Beware — Save Death."

Pinned to a partition with a pearl handled pocket knife, the above note greeted members of the Boston fire department when they entered the basement storeroom of the eight-apartment house, No. 1234 Commonwealth avenue, Allston, to fight an incendiary fire which had its origin there.

Adorned with a crude skull and crossbones, drawn in lead pencil, the note was apparently intended to convey the hint that there was a high explosive in the basement which endangered the lives of the fire fighters.

Although evidently meant as a scare it failed of its purpose, for the firemen dashed into the smoke filled room and quickly extinguished the blaze, which was found to have been started in a pile of rubbish that had been gathered up and which set fire to the woodwork.

The blaze was in close proximity to the gas meters and had it gained headway would have resulted in considerable damage, as well as endangering the lives of the occupants of the building, who were given a bad scare when the smoke ascended to the upper stories and filled the hallways.

District Chief McMahon took possession of the note and turned it over to the police for investigation.

F. C. GREEN, PARK HEAD OF PROVIDENCE, IS DEAD

Providence, R. I., April 22.—Frederick C. Green, superintendent of parks of Providence for more than twenty years, nationally famous horticulturist and landscape gardener, is dead at his home in Roger Williams Park, after a long illness. One of Mr. Green's most noted pieces of work was the development of the estate of General S. C. Lawrence at Medford, Mass. He was also superintendent of the greenhouses of B. P. Cheney at Wellesley. Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon.

MOUSE A SUICIDE TO ESCAPE CAPTIVITY

New York, April 22.—Death is better than captivity. That is evidently what an imprisoned white-footed field mouse thought, for he jumped into a jar of water in which frogs' eggs were hatching and drowned himself, according to custodians at the mouse exhibit, Staten Island. Twice he had tried to escape and both times had been foiled. His tiny mate, who was captured with him, is starving herself to death.

FIND MORE GIRLS IN LOUD CASE

Several Are to Be Questioned Concerning Joy Rides and Gay Parties

Several pretty Back Bay girls, not previously mentioned in the Wakefield murder, are to be grilled by the authorities.

They will be interrogated with particular reference to their acquaintance with Clarence W. Loud, and their alleged participation in the many gay parties to which Loud buzzed very material debates in a recent hot run from the Newburyport Turnpike.

At least one or two of the young women are said to know Mrs. Mary Gibson of No. 29 Dartmouth street, the twenty-three-year-old waitress who has been subjected to a lengthy examination at the office of District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex.

They are also believed to be acquaintances of Miss Dorothy Smith, the twenty-three-year-old Cambridge bookkeeper who has been served with a summons as a material witness in the mystery of the slaying of Patrolman James A. Preston.

District Attorney Tufts has not indicated what was learned from Mrs. Gibson, the last woman witness to be found.

It was expected that she would be interrogated again today, however.

The officials said today Mrs. Gibson was another in the list of Loud's alleged women acquaintances and that she would be a witness before the

Benson Not Aware of "Wet" U. S. Ships

Washington, April 22.—"I have sufficient troubles without constituting myself a prohibition enforcement agent," Admiral Benson, chairman of the Shipping Board, declared, commenting on reports that shipping Board vessels were sailing under the American flag "wet."

"If in the duty of seconder agents to foreign ports to report any violation of Federal prohibition laws by American ships," Admiral Benson continued. "Until such reports are received in official channels, I do not intend to waste time on investigations."

O'DALY FAILS TO AID INQUIRY

Associates Believe Loans to Contractors Account for $40,000 Deficit

Cashier Thomas J. O'Daly, who has confessed to stealing $40,000 from the city treasury, was criticized today by other public officials for his failure to make a frank statement as to what he did with the money.

These officials bluntly declare they doubt his story that he lost it in speculations extending over a period of ten years.

They suggest that if the story is true he or his counsel furnish the city with the names of the brokers through whom he did business.

"O'Daly's only chance is to make a clean breast of this and throw himself on the mercy of the court," said one former associate.

"I do not understand what he hopes to gain by not being frank now that the game is up."

Other city officials deplored the apparent disinclination of the city

REPLIES TO $100,000 CHARGE

Former Senate President in "L" Probe Accuses Lomasney of Trickery

Edwin T. McKnight, former president of the Senate, today branded Martin M. Lomasney as a falsifier.

Testifying at the Elevated investigation, he said:

"What Martin Lomasney said about me on the floor of the House was a falsehood. He knew it was a falsehood, for he spoke to falsehood."

Lomasney was sitting in the rear of the committee room as McKnight made this attack, and three times rose from his chair as if about to reply, only to change his mind and sit down again.

McKnight began his testimony by explaining his delay in appearing. He had not been to Florida under the orders of his physician.

"I am more than willing to aid this committee in any way in my power," he declared.

"I will upon its public to decide on my legislative record, if I may so word," he continued.

Mr. Lomasney, taking advantage of his position on the floor of the House of Representatives, where what counsel he saw fit to omit was privileged, has attacked me. He knew that what he said was so privileged that I could not bring him to book as he deserved.

"REASON" FOR ATTACK.

The only reason, Mr. McKnight said, that he could give for the attack of Lomasney upon himself we read "to (Lomasney) is trying to get me because while president of the Senate I would not allow him to dictate to me on committee appointments."

Referring to the charge made by Lomasney that McKnight "had been walking about the floor of the Senate with a bottle in his pocket which he got from a ship yard for the Fidelity Trust Company as a bonus," McKnight said:

"I will let the public judge between

Sheriff Refuses to Obey Ponzi Writ

Sheriff Earl P. Blake of Plymouth County refused to produce Charles Ponzi in Suffolk Superior Court today for arraignment on Suffolk County indictments, despite the writ of habeas corpus issued yesterday by Judge Fessenden.

Sheriff Blake went back the writ with a petition that it be dismissed.

His reiterated that Ponzi was a Federal prisoner serving a five-year term, and that he (Blake) as the jailer had no authority to deliver him up to the State.

Suffolk County authorities want to try Ponzi on more than fifty larceny indictments without waiting for him to complete his term for using the mails to defraud.

Ponzi's jailer in asking that the writ of habeas corpus be dismissed, quoted two points, as follows:

"Said writ does not conform in substance or form to any writ known to the common law or authorized by the statutes of this Commonwealth and the same is without force and void.

"It is apparent on the face of the writ that this court is without jurisdiction under the constitution and laws of the United States to enforce the mandate thereof."

The petition to dismiss will be argued before Judge Fessenden next Wednesday.

Lawrence and National Calfskin Leather Companies, who have been out on strike for ten weeks, will take a referendum tomorrow as to whether they will return to work or not. Officials of the concerns said that they were willing to take back 900 employes of the Lawrence company and 700 of the Calfskin plant.

me and the man who makes such a charge as that from behind a legal barrier where he is perfectly safe. If Martin Lomasney or any of his henchmen had anything on me that would stick they would have had out a warrant for my arrest long ago, never got a cent of that $100,000. The Fidelity Trust Company got it, but not as a bonus."

Mr. McKnight here called upon the committee to summon Bank Commissioner Allen, "your most capable and relentless auditor, Mr. Fride, and Mr. Strout, treasurer of the Fidelity Trust Company, to corroborate my statements in this and other respects."

"I do not see how any man could get up in the State Legislature and deliberately speak such falsehoods," McKnight said after referring to Lomasney.

PLAN TO CALL ALLEN.

Chairman Griswold said that the committee had planned to summon Bank Commissioner Allen "at the proper time for his testimony" and probably would also call Mr. Strout.

Mr. McKnight denied that he had been offered any "inducements either in 1918 or 1919 to influence" his vote on any street railway matter before the Legislature.

Asked if he had purchased any stock in the Boston Elevated, the West End, the Massachusetts Electric or the Hay State companies during the pendency of legislation affecting those corporations in 1918 or 1919, the witness said he "undoubtedly had done so."

WAS "VERY BUSY."

"I am—or have been—a very busy man. At that time I was buying quantities of stocks and bonds every day and advising other people to purchase stocks and bonds. I do not remember buying any Boston Elevated stock prior to the passage of the public control bill, but if the records of your auditor show that I did I am willing to admit it."

Asked by Representative Brown of the committee if he had any information showing purchases of such stocks by other members of the 1918 or 1919 Legislatures, he said:

"I have, but I must positively refuse to give any names as I am not here as a squealer, as Mr Lomasney has said I am. However, if your committee can not obtain that information in any other way I am disposed to give it, as I am most anxious that you should obtain all the information you desire."

Later when this same question came up in another form the witness explained that he had been "in a most confidential position in the bank" and believed that he could not with propriety give out information regarding the bank's customers.

He also admitted having bought Boston Elevated stock while a member of the Legislature, not in his own name, but for institutions, the names of which he declined to give the committee.

Still others pointed out that $40,000 might not be the extent of his peculations, a matter which will not be settled until a complete audit of the city treasury accounts is made.

Corporation Counsel Arthur D. Hill stated that a "sweeping investigation into the affairs of the former cashier was needed."

He added that what was principally desired now was to find out what had become of the money.

O'Daly, confessed thief of city funds, has pursued an unusual course for a man in such a predicament since the finger of suspicion was pointed at him.

Last Monday, when it first was noised abroad that he was under suspicion, it was reported that he was very ill, on the verge of nervous breakdown and under a doctor's care.

Wednesday he was arrested, although it was given out that he was still ill.

He was taken from his home in the automobile of Sheriff John Kelliher of Suffolk County, who is a relative of his wife. But his appearance did not bear out the stories of his delicate health, for he sprinted briskly to avoid newspaper photographers, and exhibited the agility of a man in pretty good condition.

When he was arraigned Thursday and released in $20,000 bail the story was repeated. He again arrived in the automobile of Sheriff Kelliher and showed the same speed in escaping interviewers and photographers.

After his arraignment he was spirited out of the Somerset entrance of the Courthouse and away from newspapermen, more as if he were a yielding potentiate than a self-confessed criminal.

Such treatment is not usually accorded to men who come into the hands of the Boston police, whether their thefts aggregate $10 or $40,000.

Some of those probing the case today were asking each other whether O'Daly really loaned the money to city contractors instead of losing it in "playing the market."

This is the latest theory in City Hall to account for the mysterious speculations of the trusted cashier, whose thefts, extending over a period of eight or ten years, were discovered just as he was about to take office as city treasurer.

And now comes a city official who has been a close friend of O'Daly for a quarter of a century with his story that the cashier might have lost the money in advances to contractor friends with several of whom he was very intimate.

"If it is the only way I can account for his taking such a large sum of money," declared this city official.

"O'Daly as far as my knowledge of whom goes was a fine living man. I looked upon him as a paragon of virtue and whenever I met him I used to feel sorry for some of the things I had done, he appeared so honest and upright. I don't remember to have seen him smoking more than twice in all the years I have known him.

Bergdoll and Haywood Give U. S. the Laugh

Stone walls do not a prison make, and "skipping" is the rage, with United States government prisoners, it appears.

Two more or less prominent persons have demonstrated the ease with which one may slip from the clutches of Uncle Sam and blithely depart for foreign climes.

They are Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, notorious millionaire draft dodger, now sleeping on German ale house benches in the sun, and "Big Bill" Haywood, I. W. W. leader, who has added the sun of his presence to the constellation of Soviets in Russia.

Apparently all a Federal prisoner needs to escape is a sublime faith in the stupidity of government officials, plenty of money and cold nerve.

Bergdoll won his way to freedom by promising to dig up a pot of gold supposedly buried in the mountains of West Virginia. When he got ready Bergdoll calmly left his Philadelphia home, entered an automobile and traveling to Canada by easy stages sailed for Germany.

Haywood, who has been out on bail for some time, pending an appeal to the Supreme Court of his conviction for interfering with the draft, was found to have flown when the court upheld the conviction. Trusting Federal agents, communicating with his attorney, found that the I. W. W. leader had quietly sailed for Riga, Russia, on the steamship Oscar, from there going to Moscow.

DEPOSITORS TO APPEAL TO COX

Allen and Hannigan Bitterly Assailed at Stormy Prudential Meeting

Bank Commissioner Allen and Liquidator Hannigan were bitterly criticised and their removal called for at a stormy first general meeting of depositors of the closed Prudential Trust Company at the Elks' Home. It was voted to ask Governor Cox to grant an audience to their committee in an effort to straighten out the tangled situation.

The attempt of Attorney Herbert M. Bridey, a director of the company, to defend Mr. Hannigan when W. Edwin Ulmer of Brookline moved that he be requested to resign, precipitated a pandemonium of stamping and hisses. Chairman Joseph E. Doherty then engaged in a controversy with Bridey during which the chairman demanded an accounting of the $34,000 expenses of liquidation.

Daniel T. O'Connell, counsel for the depositors, declared that the commissioner pictured the banks as in a worse condition than they really were. Mrs. John J. Dixon, secretary of the committee, called for a commission to replace the commissioner who had been "wished on them." W. Edwin Ulmer linked the line-up of the bank's friends with fact that the Friends of Irish Freedom are the largest depositors with an account of $31,000.

DEFAMED MOTHER TO CHILDREN

Littleton Shows Mrs. Stokes Described as Prowler, Only Home at Meals

New York, April 22.—Can it be that W. E. D. Stokes had in mind his wife when he wrote their children, Muriel and James, about his wandering "pussy?"

Martin W. Littleton, attorney for Helen Elwod Stokes in the suit for divorce brought by her elderly millionaire husband, contends that he had.

The two typewritten pages with red interlineations, which is the "symbolic letter" figuring extensively in the sensational case, was read in court by Littleton. Addressed to "Dear Red-Top and Jimmie," and then were visiting their grandmother in Denver, and dated September 11, 1920, it told of a dog their father expected to buy them.

"PROWLS WITH OTHER CATS."

This is the portion characterized "symbolic" by Mr. Littleton.

"Our pussy is a wandering pussy and does not come near the house except at meal time when she insists on getting something to eat.

"The rest of the time she is gadding about. I cannot understand where she goes. I have seen her two or three blocks away from home at night, prowling around with other cats. It is awful. She has gotten into bad company and bad ways. She is not used with the friendship of one cat (a nice, big black cat next), but she wants to be running around with a hundred cats. Pretty soon, I think, she will be friendly with a thousand.

"FRIENDLY WITH A THOUSAND."

"By the books before me it looks to me as if our pussy was friendly with a thousand tommy-cats and still keeps young and fools everybody about her age."

The letter was signed "Daddy."

Littleton's re-direct examination of Mrs. Emma Miller, Mrs. Stokes' mother, attempted to show that in his original bill of complaint, Stokes implied illegitimacy of the children. Such implication, according to Herbert Smyth, Stokes' attorney, existed only in the imagination of his opponents.

Mrs. Miller told of Billig's visit to the Stokes' home New Year's Eve, 1918, and during the months following. She said he occupied a room on the second floor which formerly had been the daughter's. Smith and Stokes, she said, moved to the floor above. She denied excitedly that any of her daughter's wardrobe was ever left in the room turned over to Billig. She also denied knowledge of Stokes' objection to having the young man in the house. Smyth persisted:

DENIES BILLIG IN ROOM.

"Don't you know that Mr. Stokes objected to finding Hal Billig in his wife's room at 2 o'clock?"

She declared that her son-in-law never had found Billig in his wife's room. Billig left the house at night because of the general turbulence, she continued.

Stokes, she testified, did not depart two days later, January 3, as Smyth suggested, but remained till January 10. She then called Billig from Chicago and he remained in the Stokes home from the latter part of January until they left the house on the following May 12.

Mrs. Miller was afflicted with failing memory when asked if Wallace requested her consent to marry the then Miss Elwood. She finally said that she did not remember her daughter's testifying to any marriage proposal from Wallace.

MADE ILL BY DRUGGED MILK IN WESTFIELD

Westfield, April 22.—As an aftermath of the ether drinking sensation here, complaints have been made with the Board of Health that milk is being drugged. Agent Robert M. Marr of the Board of Health examined some of the alleged doped milk which was reported as having been secured by foreigners here, but could find no trace of drugs in it. One resident claimed that he secured some of the milk by mistake and was ill for two days.

Girl Questioned in Loud Case

Mrs. Mary Gibson, new witness in case being built against Clarence W. Loud. While admitting she knows the defendant, Mrs. Gibson denies being in Wakefield the night of the tragedy.

special session of the Middlesex Grand Jury to be called next Thursday.

AT RANCE, SHE SAYS.

Testimony about a young woman with a green pom pom on her hat, alleged to have been seen on the night of the murder, caused the police to round up Mrs. Gibson. She is said to have admitted to the State authorities that she owns a hat with a green pom pom, but denied being in Wakefield or in Loud's company on the night of the crime. She claims to have attended a dance that night in Odd Fellows' Hall, Boston, and said she could produce witnesses to prove it.

The police announced that she was being questioned "merely in a process of elimination" and that they had not changed their opinion as to the identity of the "mystery woman" in the case.

Inquiry at the Dartmouth street lodging house showed that Mrs. Gibson arrived there on the Tuesday or Wednesday following the murder. She told the landlady that she came from Melrose Highlands, gave her a check for a trunk which arrived soon after she did and remarked that she expected a telephone call.

The landlady said a woman friend of Mrs. Gibson called on the telephone from Melrose Highlands and that Mrs. Gibson, in her conversation over the telephone, mentioned that she had left too hurriedly to explain certain matters to her Melrose friend. Mrs. Gibson today denied that she had ever gone riding with Loud. Her entry into the case caused a stir so quickly following the second appearance of Loud in Malden District Court, where his case was continued another fortnight, pending special grand jury action.

CHIC AND STYLISH.

Mrs. Gibson is chic and stylish. She has auburn hair, fair skin, is five feet five inches in height, and weighs about 130 pounds. She is said to be separated from her husband and to have a child. She recently lived with her sister, Arline Dolly. She was born in New Hampshire. She was not outwardly disturbed by her ordeal today.

Officers from Wakefield conferred with Captain Driscoll at the Dedham Street Station and he sent a patrolman with them to the Dartmouth street house where they waited for Mrs. Gibson to return from work. She is employed at present at a cafe on Atlantic avenue. She told the landlady that she thought she was under arrest, but was not arrested.

It was learned today for the first time that Loud, after having been locked up at Wakefield police station soon after one o'clock on Sunday morning, April 10, less than four hours after Patrolman Preston had been riddled with bullets at the junction of Lowell street and Beebe lane, was confronted by the body of his alleged victim in the First Aid room in the basement.

The body of the young policeman lay on an operating table covered by a sheet. Loud, whisked from his home in Melrose, was placed in a cell and then ushered into the little hospital annex with its dazzling white enamel fittings. The hour was uncanny. He was led close to the body and an officer pulled back the sheet exposing the features and upper body of the Yankee Division veteran.

Those who witnessed the dramatic spectacle say that Loud, calm when taken from his family while shaving, turned pale at the tableaux in the first aid room in Wakefield. He is reported to have found difficulty in overcoming his emotion.

In grim silence he was led back to his cell. He is said to have told a conflicting story about the hat he wore on the night of the tragedy. He is quoted as having first claimed to have worn a cap, but search is said to have revealed a soft hat, the band of which was blood-stained.

It was in this little hospital room in the basement of Lowell Hall that Drs. Perley and O'Leary performed the autopsy on Preston's body. Under one of the legs of the medicine chest were several strips of a cigar box placed there as a prop by Preston late that Saturday afternoon to straighten the cabinet.

Preston went to confession to his parish priest at 8 o'clock that Saturday afternoon, four hours and fifteen minutes before his tragic death, and was to have received communion next morning, it was learned today.

He was unusually devout. He was twenty-six years of age. His widowed mother was his only sweetheart.

His brother Joseph, also a patrolman on the Wakefield police force, has worked night and day in his effort to solve the murder of Arthur. It was he who drove the automobile to Boston yesterday to hunt Mrs. Gibson in the South End with fellow-officers.

Joe was one of the first on the murder scene. Dr. O'Leary turned over Arthur's effects to him from his dead brother's pockets, among them the police notebook bearing the entries made by Arthur at 9:10 on the night of the murder, which listed the name of "Clarence W. Loud, No. 93 Stratford road, Melrose," and "Alice Dennet, Hudson street, Somerville."

Preston's Comrades Praise His Record

At a meeting, banquet and reunion held by former members of Company A, 101st M. F.'s, at the Y. D. Club, the following resolution were adopted on the death of James A. Preston, a member of the organization:

"That we mourn the loss of our comrade, Corporal James A. Preston, for whom we held the greatest esteem.

"That we are proud of our comrade, who was always faithful to duty, even to the end.

"That we regret the loss of him, who, ever and always, was a soldier, respected by his officers, admired by his comrades in military and civil life.

"That the name of our comrade be inscribed in the records as a soldier, brother and comrade who held his post and fell while protecting the welfare of humanity and the law and order of his town, State and country."

Preston Family May Get $4,000

Wakefield may give $4,000 to the heirs of Patrolman James A. Preston, slain in the discharge of his duty April 9.

The selectmen have inserted a special article in the town warrant proposing such action. The article will be acted at the coming town meeting.

There also is talk of increasing the number of police officers in Wakefield, as a result of the tragedy.

There are only nine regular policemen to serve a population of 12,000, and keep thousands of autoists in order.

MINERS MEET LLOYD GEORGE

Colliery Owners Also Agree to New Conference on Strike Problem

By International News Service.

London, April 22.—Resuming his efforts to settle the coal strike, Premier Lloyd George today invited the miners and mine owners to send delegates to No. 10 Downing street at 3 o'clock today for a discussion of a basis of conciliation.

Both the owners and workers accepted the invitation.

The House of Commons will be in session late today awaiting the results of the Premier's attempts at a settlement.

After declaring their willingness to meet the Premier, the miners issued a statement saying that the delegates from the various districts had unanimously voted for a continuance of the strike, insisting upon a national pool of profits and a national wage scale.

The miners' delegates unanimously voted their confidence in Frank Hodges, who was the principal orator at last week's triple alliance meetings.

A resolution was adopted emphatically protesting against the defection of the railway men and transport workers from the miners' cause.

Mail Men Won't Be Forced Out at 65

Washington, April 22.—Postoffice employes will no longer face compulsory retirement on reaching the age limit, which has been sixty-two years for women and sixty-five for men.

Postmaster-General Hays announced that those who desire to remain in active service will be allowed to fill out questionnaires and each case will be passed on individually.

Resigned employes will be taken back as needed, but will be assigned to work one grade below that they were doing when they retired.

All reinstatement cases of the past year are to be reviewed on their merits shortly by the new administration.

HAVE WINE HERE FOR PASSOVER

Situation in New York Not Duplicated in Boston, Rabbis Say

The observance of the feast of the Passover, beginning at sunset today, will not be spoiled in Boston by lack of sacramental wine, as it bids fair to be in New York.

Prohibition Enforcement Director Daniel O'Connell said today he had received no complaints of a shortage of wine, and various rabbis questioned by the Boston American declared the stock on hand was sufficient.

Rabbi David M. Rabinovits of No. 156 Chambers street, however, stated he had only two gallons and expressed the fear that the supply would be insufficient.

Rabbi Isaac Barits of No. 40 Intervale street, Roxbury, and Rabbi Louis Hiberstein of No. 42 Spring street, declared they knew of no shortage of wine here.

For the first time in its history, Passover services will be held tonight at the United States Immigration Station in East Boston, through the efforts of the local branch of the Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America.

PROFESSIONAL SLAYER WAS PAID $20 A WEEK

New York, April 22.—A murder trust in which slayers were hired at $20 a week was explained in testimony in the White Plains Supreme Court. Frank Fevrola was charged with slaying Generoso Nanaro in Yonkers. Two gangsters testified to having participated in the slayings and shootings. One of them was Raffaelo Daniello, serving five years in Sing Sing. Thomas J. O'Neill read in the record testimony given by Daniello in Brooklyn, in which he was quoted as saying that he was paid as a professional killer at $20 a week. Daniello indignantly declared that he only had been implicated in two killings, but that he had witnessed a number of shootings. He added, "We kill no good people, we only kill old criminals."

Escape Mustard Gas by Flight to Hills

By International News Service.

Boundbrook, N. J., April 22.—A leak in a tank filled with deadly mustard gas came near driving the entire population of this town to the hills today.

The gas had spread for about a mile from the chemical factory where the tank stood when a general fire alarm with all the bells in town ringing drove people out of their beds.

Men, women and children living in the immediate vicinity of the factory fled sharp pain in their eyes and as they rushed to the street the mustard fumes set them coughing and sneezing, which kept up till the shad found refuge in the hills. No one was seriously injured.

A chemist on night duty at the factory averted disaster by reporting the leak and getting to work to stop it. He and another chemist were so badly affected that they were treated at their homes later.

The authorities are taking steps to prevent a recurrence of "low down mustard."

800-MILE WALK WITH 2 BABIES

Mother Is Wheeling Children From Newark, N. J., to Wabash, Ind.

New York, April 22—A mother, wheeling two children, started walking from Newark to Wabash, Ind., 800 miles. She is without funds and wants to get to the bedside of her husband, who is ill. She said she would find employment.

She is Mrs. Mary Allen, thirty-two, and the children are John, two, and Charles, Jr., three.

The police housed them over night in Newark and in the morning contributed enough money for her to buy food for the day.

Mrs. Allen said:

"I am strong and I can do housework along the way. I'll get along all right."

Mrs. Allen was in Rutherford when she learned of her husband's illness. She walked to Newark, eight miles away. It took her from early afternoon until late in the evening. She was almost exhausted.

WOMAN ROBBED BY BANDITS

Steal $400 in Providence Store and Escape; Attempt a Second Robbery

Providence, R. I., April 22.—Ethel Cohen was robbed of $400 in cash, tendering for her automobile and a check for $3 by two men who came into her store here and asked for some egg cases. When the woman went into the back room to get the cases one of the men went behind the counter and took the money. They then ran down North Main street and disappeared.

The police have a good description of the robbers.

Shortly afterwards two men answering the description of these men entered the store of William Fisher, No. 856 Main street, and demanded money of Mrs. Retta Fisher. When she walked to the safe to get it, in an attempt to lock it, shouting to her brother, Max Sherman, to call the police, the bandits fled hastily outside and ran out into Pike street and jumped into an automobile.

Fisher followed them, but a third man, who was waiting near the car, pointed a revolver at him. Fisher stopped and then all three drove off.

The police believe that the men are the same who held up and robbed William Flannigan, a Wakefield fruit dealer, Monday night of $210.

Moon in Eclipse, Seems to Have Had a Bath

By International News Service.

Lowe Observatory, Mount Lowe, Cal., April 22.—Visible to one half of the inhabitants of the globe in case they had been inclined to observe it, a total eclipse of the moon, remarkable for the opportunity it afforded scientists in the United States and in South America to make observations, occurred late last night and early today.

To the average person an eclipse of the moon is merely an event of passing interest. To astronomers who in the case of the present eclipse, have known for four years the exact minute it was due, it was an incident of great scientific interest moment. Seated beside Edgar Lucien Larkin, director of Lowe Observatory, the correspondent spent several hours watching the moon, or mass of what is supposed to be barren rock, two thousand one hundred and sixty miles in diameter, enter the earth's shadow, saw it totally obscured, then emerge with a radiance that gave it an appearance of having had a bath.

The cause of the eclipse was the earth attaining a position directly between the sun and the moon. As a consequence the sun's light to the lunar body was obstructed.

Early in the evening the moon, as viewed from the observatory, 2,500 feet up the side of Mount Lowe and far above mists and any possible haze appeared through the telescope to be a moth-yellowish ball.

As the hours passed the lunar instrument was adjusted to meet the demand of the correspondent's eyes for glories of the lunar orb came into view. It is 239,000 miles from the terrestrial ball, yet last night under the powerful lens it seemed to be hanging in space comparatively close at hand.

If the reader saw any of the reproduced photographs taken during the war and showing artillery in what appeared to be pit-marked landscapes he has a pretty fair idea of what the moon looks like under a powerful telescope.

Professor Larkin pointed out prominent craters, such as Copernicus, fifty-six miles in diameter and eleven thousand feet deep; Aristarchus, Plato, Tycho, Proiemy and Kepler. The most beautiful of all those was Aristarchus, supposed to have walls of crystals and which last night had a lustre like a jewel.

FLYNN TRACES BOMB CLEWS

New York Explosion Suspect Under Arrest Linked Up With Anarchists

By International News Service.

New York, April 22.—Secret service Chief William J. Flynn, and assistants today worked on new leads to the Wall street bomb explosion produced by the arrest of Tito Lig, at Scranton, Pa., on a draft evasion charge.

Latitude was given the prisoner provided clews leading to Paterson, N. J., where Lig is said to be well known in anarchist circles. The bomb wagon was traced to that town but the trail was lost there.

A letter found on Lig from an anarchist organization at Paterson, asked Lig for a card for special work. Another letter in Italian said: "Burn, go to war and kill your brothers and get decorated with medals."

Lig, whose memory otherwise seems clear insists he does not know where he was or what he did between September 8 and September 28. His memory of the day of the explosion is a blank, he swears.

INJURED AS TRACTOR DIVES OFF EMBANKMENT

Westfield, April 22—Leigh Jones, of No. 19 Noble street, was probably fatally injured when a tractor which he was operating went over an embankment into Little River that adjoins the Foster-Sanderson farm. He was taken to the Noble Hospital.

Village Postoffice Gossips Must Move

Washington, April 22—The village housewife who buys her butter and eggs in the combination postoffice and general store and then prevents others from getting their mail while she exchanges the day's gossip with her neighbors, will have to find another place for the daily meeting.

And the male villagers who have adopted the postoffice stove as the centre for their discussion of the world's events will have to move to the library stable or gather around the town pump.

All this because the Postoffice Department has informed postmasters that certain sections of the postal laws and regulations which concern the conduct of postoffices were not being observed. Order must be maintained in postoffice lobbies, the department declared.

BOB WRENN SUED BY HOTEL MAID

Girl Asks $10,000 Damages from Harvard Man Charging Him With Attack

New York, April 22.—Miss Cecilia McHugh, who was employed in the Hotel Clarendon as a maid, has brought suit for $10,000 against Robert D. Wrenn, former national tennis champion and Harvard football star and graduate.

Wrenn, who is a member of Wrenn Brothers & Company, No. 19 Broadway, of the New York Stock Exchange, formerly lived at the hotel. Miss McHugh in her suit alleges that while at the hotel on August 10 last, Wrenn "wantonly and maliciously assaulted her without cause or provocation, and that at the said time and place the defendant knocked at the apartment of the plaintiff in the said hotel, and with force and violence laid hands upon the plaintiff and insulted and pushed her in a wrongful effort to gain an entrance into her apartment."

The plaintiff claims she received severe injuries in the course of the alleged struggle and that she suffered nervous shock and mental anguish.

Wrenn, it is known, was abroad when the suit when interviewed. An affidavit of service attached to the complaint stated that Wrenn had been served with papers at his office.

During the war the former athlete was a major attached to an American aviation unit in France.

OPPOSES STATE MOVIE CENSOR

Mrs. Albert T. Leatherbee, Civic Leader, Appears Before Legislative Body

Massachusetts women do not want State censorship of movies, Mrs. Albert T. Leatherbee informed the House Ways and Means Committee in a bitter attack on the proposal to institute such a censorship.

Mrs. Leatherbee, a well known civic leader, said that many of those who wanted censorship were "lazy mothers desiring to shift their responsibilities." She also scored those who quoted indorsements by various women's clubs as showing the sentiment of the sex, and said such endorsements were often rushed through by a few alleged leaders and had no significance at all.

"This bill is unnecessary and would establish a dangerous precedent," she said. "It would add unwarranted expense to the burden of the already overburdened taxpayer.

"We have enough law to protect public morals. All that is needed is enforcement. We also have censorship. That of the licensing department of Boston covers 80 per cent. of the films shown in the State.

"This bill gives too much leeway to one man. If he were narrow-minded or bigoted he could stretch a point to satisfy any little prejudice he might have. We are all human and all have these little prejudices.

"State censorship means taking away more local rights. It is a direct attack on home rule."

HUNT CLEW TO BELGIAN PAPERS

Diplomatic Correspondence May Have Been Stolen Before Ship Left Antwerp

Baltimore, April 22.—No clew had been obtained early today as to the whereabouts of three packages of Belgian diplomatic correspondence reported to have been stolen from the steamship Nervier of the Royal Belge line which arrived Wednesday and docked yesterday. The fourth packet was found intact.

There are indications that the papers may have been stolen before the vessel's departure from Antwerp.

The papers were addressed to the Belgian ambassador at Washington and may have contained communications of a highly important nature from the Belgian government to be delivered to the American State Department through the Belgian embassy in this country.

MEDFORD-SOMERVILLE 5-CENT FARE PLANNED

General Manager Dana of the Boston Elevated announced today that a five-cent carfare, similar to that now effective in Everett, will be put into operation in Medford and Somerville and on other surface lines running into Sullivan Square Terminal, as soon as the necessary changes can be made at Sullivan Square. Passengers will pay as they leave on inbound cars, the fare inside city or town limits being five cents. Dana also announced that all-night cars would furnish hourly service on the Fellsway line in Malden and Medford, beginning shortly.

SENATE FLOUTS WORKERS' BILL

Disdains to Even Listen to Tarbell's Plea for State Insurance Fund

Although Senator Warren E. Tarbell of East Brookfield declared that foreign casualty insurance companies, many of them owned and controlled in England, are taking $5,000,000 out of this State every year as profits, "builded on the death and sufferings of our own working people," he was unable to obtain a single vote in the State Senate on his bill to establish a State insurance fund.

Tarbell pleaded his cause for more than an hour, while the scene in the Senate degenerated into a public wrangle.

All but four or five of the forty State Senators, elected by the people to represent them, left the chamber and drifted out into the Senate smoking rooms, where they remained until Tarbell concluded his appeal, and then drifted back to vote unanimously against the bill.

Finds Advice to Young Better Than Whipping

Do you believe in whipping children to correct them? A Chelsea mother asked the question, through the Boston American. Answers have begun to come in. The Boston American will be glad to print your opinion on this age-old "rod-and-the-child" controversy. Send letters to "Training Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass."

INCITES FEAR IN CHILD.

Training Editor, Boston American:

If whipping is good for children, then it is equally so for us. We parents, who are supposed to know something, often make mistakes, and knowing this to be so, how is it that we expect perfection in our own children, who are just learning?

It is the mother who forms and directly influences the standards and ideals of her children. Therefore, the mother who realizes this and punishes her children by whipping, is not demonstrating freedom in such an act, but quite to the contrary, she is exhibiting weakness and inciting fear in her child.

These qualities are not the kind we should display or encourage in our children. They are not conducive to love, and if we indulge in them, we cannot expect our children to love us for we never love those we fear.

A good understanding with the erring child, and constructive advice will do more good than all the spanking in the world. And following this course, a woman shows her strength, thus living up to the ideals she wants emulated in her child.

D. B., Brookline.

ONLY IN SELF-DEFENCE.

Training Editor, Boston American:

Regarding corporal punishment, may I remind you of the Toledo opponent of the slipper who declared he "never struck his children except in self defense." R. J. H., Boston.

BANDITS HOLDUP 100 IN CLUB

Buffalo Chauffeurs Lined Up and Deprived of $10,000 by Five Men

By International News Service.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 22.—One hundred men, who were in the Chauffeurs' Club, were lined up early today with their backs to the wall, by five masked bandits, each of whom wielded two revolvers, and forced to relinquish their cash and jewelry, which totalled $10,000.

The hold-up, staged storybook style, moved like clockwork. Suddenly the 100 men in the club, on the fourth floor of the building on West Eagle street, found themselves staring into the muzzles of ten revolvers.

The bandits worked rapidly, threatened to shoot anyone who made an outcry, and quietly departe dby means of a waiting automobile.

On the street below there were a score of men standing about the Iroquois Hotel and others sitting in automobiles across the way, but they did not suspect anything was amiss until the victims came tumbling down the stairs crying for the police.

The bandits had disappeared. No arrests were made.

DEDHAM BOY IS SHOT BY CHUM

Thought It Was Unloaded, Eight-Year-Old Youth Says After Accident

Carmelo Romaninni, ten years old of No. 61 Bridge street, Dedham, was at the Massachusetts General Hospital today suffering from a wound in his upper lip inflicted when his playmate, Salvatore Trevet, eight years old, discharged a 32-calibre revolver which they found near the Trevet home, also on Bridge street.

The younger boy's explanation was that he didn't think it was loaded. Police regard the shooting as accidental.

4-TON MACHINE FALLS 12 STORIES; BURSTS MAIN

New York, April 22.—A crowd on 125th street watched a four-ton autohoisting machine break from its hoisting ropes and fall twelve stories with a thundering crash, boring through the basement and sub-basement, and coming to stop on a water main. The main, which prevented the machine from falling into the Fourth avenue subway, broke, and sent a geyser of water ten feet into the air.

SENATE LINEUP IS PROMISING

55 May Be Counted on As Not Blindly Following Dictates of Leaders

By NORMAN HAPGOOD.
Staff Correspondent Boston American.

Washington, April 22.—Since my article of yesterday was published a reader of brilliancy and penetration has seen in it a sign of hostility to the administration. This only shows how difficult it is to be clear. It happens that I was enthusiastically on the side of the administration in the case under discussion, the Colombia treaty. It also happens that I think the administration has done exceedingly well up to date and deserves cordial good will.

Norman Hapgood.

But cordiality is not inconsistent with fair criticism. The existence of freedom of thought in Congress is a good thing not only for the country but for the administration itself.

What was the theme of my article yesterday? It was simply that the aspect of the treaty vote that most interested the Senators themselves was what it revealed as the first test of strength in a case where orders had gone out from the Republican leaders.

What is the situation revealed? First we have in the Senate 37 Democrats, who naturally on the whole belong to the opposition, although yesterday they voted with the administration, since it was a Wilson policy. Then you have 17 Republicans, voting or paired, against the policy on which discipline had been called for. Lastly we have in La Follette, France and Ladd three independents, and in McCormick a man who belongs in the insurgent group.

In a Senate of 96, therefore, we have something in the neighborhood of 55 (for Wadsworth and Nelson would usually not bolt as they did yesterday) who will not support the measures of the Republican leaders unless they seem good to them. My proposition is that such a situation is more promising than if discipline were as iron, as in the height of power of Aldrich and Cannon.

At dinner the other night Senator Norris made this point clear in a talk that thrilled those who heard it. The gist of it was like this: "Too rigid discipline takes the life and the value out of government. It makes parties just alike and makes them both the tools of the special interests. I would rather be represented in Congress by a man who was free and disagreed with me than by a man who was a slave of the machine and agreed with me."

On the Colombian treaty he said: "I do not care which side a man votes on in that matter. The important thing is that he shall have a conviction and vote according to his conviction." Of course Norris or any other reasonable man would admit the need for leadership. But the steam roller is different.

WEIRD DOCTRINE.

Senator Norris aroused much hilarity with the tale of his first vote, many years ago, when he had just come to the House. It was February 21, the day before Washington's Birthday. Suddenly the leader of the Democrats, who were then in the minority in both houses, arose and proposed adjournment until the 23rd. Immediately the Republican leader arose and opposed it. It was lost.

The new member from Nebraska had not thought much about it, but he had a sort of notion it might be just as well to pay this tribute to the father of his country, so he arose to be counted on that side. He was the only Republican. Dark looks greeted him.

He went into the cloak room. One tall member was there. "Young man," he said, "you have made a great mistake. Could you not see it was a party measure?" I tell you for your own good it will be well for you to vote as your leaders vote."

LORIMER COMPLETELY PARTISAN

"The next day Norris thought he would look in on the Senate. The chamber was empty. "What is the matter?" he asked of an attendant. "Where are the Senators?"

The attendant gave him a look of scorn. "Don't you know it is Washington's Birthday?" The Republican leader in the Senate had been quick enough to move an adjournment before the Democratic leader did, so it carried, and what was wrong at one end of the Capitol building was right at the other.

Senator Lorimer was an example of complete partisanship. Often he did not turn up at roll call unless he was sent for. Then he came in without knowing what the vote was about. Somebody once asked him how he knew how to vote. "Lafollette and Lodge come just before me," he explained. "I get in before they vote. If Lafollette votes yes I vote no. If Lodge votes yes I vote yes. If they both vote yes I don't vote."

U. S. REFUSES GERMAN PLEA

Washington, April 22.—Replying to the German appeal that President Harding set the amount of reparations Germany should pay and to "secure the consent of the Allied powers to such mediation," Secretary of State Hughes sympathetically informed Berlin that the United States could not agree to such a course.

Germany was assured, however, that this government would consider submitting Germany's own proposals to the Allied governments, so that the whole matter of reparations could be resumed and a just settlement speedily reached.

BRITISH AGAINST RUHR INVASION

Lloyd George Does Not Want to Have French Control Coal Mines

Paris, April 22.—The Germans will likely be admitted to the deliberations of the Supreme Council conference held at the end of next month in London.

This was revealed today following the receipt by the French foreign office of the text of Lord D'Abernon's urgent message from Berlin to Lloyd George. Lord D'Abernon reported to the British Premier that he had examined the new German reparations proposals and found them "eminently worth discussing."

Following the receipt of this message Lloyd George positively refused to assume the responsibility for the new invasion of Germany desired by France.

The British Premier has declined to turn the informal conversation to be held at Lympne Sunday into an interallied conference, stating it as his view that the new German proposals must be received and examined possibly with the collaboration of the Germans before any military action is decided upon or undertaken.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

By Frieda Davis.

AMONG the film offerings of foreign countries comes an example from Sweden, "A Man There Was," taken from a poem by Jlsers and featuring an American actor, Victor Seastrom. It is being shown at Tremont Temple.

Ibsen is best known for his relentless way of "holding the mirror up to nature." In "A Man There Was" there is nothing of the remorseless analysis of human emotions. Such work needs, to a certain extent, the spoken word of the stage to show clearly the working-out process. Nevertheless it seems possible to show it quite clearly than it is given on the screen at Tremont Temple. Ibsen is powerful, "A Man There Was" lacks power.

A SEA STORY.

Terje Viken lives on an island off Sweden. During a war a blockade is maintained between this island and the mainland. The food supplies are giving out, and in desperation Terje makes an attempt to get to the mainland. He fails into the hands of the enemy, pleads with the captain, telling him that his wife back to the island, and child are starving, but it is no use.

Several years later, when peace is made, Terje is released and makes his way to the island, where he finds the inhabitants in a surprisingly healthy condition considering the fears they were supposed to be cut off from food. His wife and child, he learns, died on the day he was captured. Some years later a yacht is in distress on the island. Terje makes his way out to it and finds that those on board are the captain who had imprisoned him, and the latter's wife and child.

Here is the big scene. Rather, here is where the big scene should be. Terje shows that he realizes the situation and feels is keenly, but how he carries on his fight to "return good for evil" is disappointingly shown. Eventually, he wrests them and lays the credit for his deed to, a subtitle help us, "sweet little May," the child.

SEASTROM LIKE FARNUM.

Seastrom reminds one strongly of William Farnum. In appearance they are amazingly alike. He plays with a certain strength, except in his emotional scenes. Then he seems to lose force. The rest of the castthe names are not given—play with a curious lack of feeling. Essentially a race of fatalists, they somehow do not give the impression of being so. Their lack of color seems to savor of dullness, and the latter's acting is not convincing.

TO PUT "SENSE" IN CENSORSHIP

A NUMBER of well-known authors and playwrights are making their first screen appearances in an "all-star" film. "The Non-Sense of Censorship," which has been made for the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry in its fight against the censorship agitation.

Douglas Fairbanks will be the only regular movie actor in the picture. He will share honors with Rupert Hughes, Edward Knoblock, Samuel Merwin, Thomas Buchanan, Rita Weiman and Montague Glass, all of whom have been represented on the screen by their stories.

"The Non-Sense of Censorship" will deal with the absurd side of the question as well as with its serious side, and those who are interested in its showing say that it is one of the most effective arguments against the legal supervision of motion pictured. It will be shown in those stages in which the question has been under the most discussion.

A NEW MOVIE RECRUIT.

Mrs. MORGAN BELMONT'S success as a movie actress in Griffith's "Way Down East" has inspired others of her friends to follow in her footsteps. Mrs. Lydig Hoyt, leader of the youngest smart set of New York and prominent beauty, has signed up to play the role of Mrs. Truesdale in Norma Talmadge's next feature, "The Wonderful Thing," which is being produced at the Talmadge studio.

Mrs. Hoyt has appeared in amateur theatricals for years and has often made the remark that she would like to try her wings in professional theatrical performances. She will be known on the screen as Julia Hoyt.

TRAVEL NOTE.

ALBERT CAPELLANI, one of the best directors making movies today, has returned to America to make more pictures for International. Since his work with "The Wild Goose" and "The Inside of the Cup," both Cosmopolitan films, he has looked up new subjects and has gained new ideas which he will put into practice as soon as he takes up the megaphone again.

GLORIA SWANSON'S LAST APPEARANCE WITH DE MILLE.

THE new Cecil De Mille feature, "The Affairs of Anatol," marks the last appearance of Gloria Swanson under the direction of the man who has brought out her talents to such an extent that she has reached stardom.

Today Gloria Swanson is a star in her own name. Following the completion of her work as the wife in "The Affairs of Anatol," Miss Swanson has begun the screening of the Elinor Glyn story, "The Great Moment."

It was about three years ago that Cecil DeMille, casting about for an actress to play the leading role in his production, "Don't Change Your Husband," noticed her work in a small role. He offered her the part in his film and followed that with such successes as "For Better, For Worse," "Male and Female," "Why Change Your Wife?" and "Something to Think About." Stardom followed these as the inevitable result of her training.

CAMERA CLICKS.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE is leaving New York for Lakewood, N. J., and Atlantic City, for a rest. With three productions ready for release she feels that she is enough ahead of her work to take a few weeks off and forget that there are such things as movies.

DOROTHY DAVENPORT, known in Hollywood as Mrs. Wallace Reid, will return to the screen. She will play a prominent role in "Every Woman's Problem."

IN Tom Mix's new thriller, seven famous auto racing drivers will be seen: Ralph De Palma, Eddie Hearn, Ed O'Donnell, Joe Thomas, Tommy Milton, Bennie Hill and Jimmie Murphy.

IN Frank Keenan's stage revival of "Rip Van Winkle" he will use the properties and costumes of Joseph Jefferson, which Jefferson's son, Thomas Jefferson, has loaned him. Thomas Jefferson is appearing in films.

MIRIAM HAC DONALD will appear in the next production of her famous sister, Katherine MacDonald. Miriam is the wife of Captain Clyde Balsley and the sister of Mary MacLaren, who is playing leads in International pictures.

HAVING made fame and fortune for his little "side partner," Jackie Coogan, Charlie Chaplin is planning to give his leading lady, Edna Purviance, a big chance in his picture, a two-reel comedy.

"MORE THRILLS," SAYS NEILAN

WE'RE going to have more and more thrillers," said Marshall Neilan the other day. "Hair-raising stunts, aerial tricks and daredevil episodes are coming in more and more. Whether it's the reaction of the slow-moving and actionless spectacles we've been wallowing in during the past year I can't say, but there's little question that that's the tendency of films in the future."

"Our most beautiful women stars are even going in for it," he continued. "They see the value of having intensity and thrills in their pictures and are choosing stories with murders and robberies galore. Katherine MacDonald's next production, 'Stranger Than Fiction,' is full of excitement, I'm told."

DYSPEPSIA IS GREATEST ENEMY OF MODERN MAN

Distressing Malady Is Most Prevalent of All Present-Day Diseases—Thousands Are Relieved by Tanlac.

Of all the conditions that afflict humanity, chronic dyspepsia, or what is more commonly known as indigestion, is probably the most prevalent.

This most universal malady has baffled the medical profession for years, and some of the most skilled specialists have been unable to cope with it successfully.

Hours might be consumed in describing the sufferings, mental and physical, of the sufferers from chronic dyspepsia and their failure heretofore to get relief. A morbid, unreal, whimsical and melancholy condition of the mind, aside from the nervousness and physical suffering, is the usual condition of the average dyspeptic.

Dyspepsia, or indigestion as the case may be, is usually caused by the eating of too much or unsuitable food, and the mucous membrane of the stomach becomes irritated, and there is set up an acute or sub-acute gastric catarrhal condition which prevents the proper digestion of the food. The food is apt to ferment and decompose, and as a result the familiar distressing symptoms of dyspepsia may arise. In mild cases there is nothing more than an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach, with a certain amount of distension, headache, loss of appetite, perhaps belching of gas and occasional vomiting. There may be also accompanying intestinal symptoms such as constipation, pains in the back colic, etc. There may be only the dwelling heartburn due to the inflammation of the stomach from excessive gases of fermentation or putrefaction. In the most severe cases—those that last over a day or two—the symptoms enumerated may be much more intense. The distress may be marked and the general constitutional symptoms more evident. When this stage is reached the loss of appetite, the mental depression and the general uncomfortable feeling in the stomach are much more pronounced. This is particularly true in acute gastritis.

It frequently occurs from continued errors in diet that this condition becomes chronic, and the symptoms persist for an indefinite period. The appetite is very apt to be varied, but at times very good. Heartburn is frequent, if not constant. The stomach is painful on pressure, the tongue is coated, there is a bad taste in the mouth, and there are changes in the amount of salivary secretion. Constipation is also usually present, although diarrhoea may alternate.

Most cases of dyspepsia can be cured if the diet is properly looked after and with the proper treatment. Proper eating, the proper amount of food and hygienic living are the most important features of the treatment. Most people eat too fast and eat too much.

One noted authority has said that the stomach is the foundation head of health or disease, as the case may be. Tanlac was declared scientific for the regulation of the stomach, liver and kidneys, but it is no unusual thing for persons who have used it to find that they have also been relieved of rheumatism and other ailments not commonly associated as having their origin in stomach trouble.

Tanlac is absolutely not a single secretive of the body that is not benefited by the helpful action of Tanlac, which begins its work by stimulating the digestive organs thereby enriching the blood and bringing to the whole system. Next it enables the weak, worn-out stomach to thoroughly digest the food, assisting the assimilation of the nourishing elements.

Millions of people have not only been relieved of the most obstinate forms of dyspepsia and indigestion by the Tanlac treatment after other remedies had failed, but many of them have reported a remarkable and rapid increase in weight and a return to normal health and strength by its use.

Tanlac is distributed by International Proprietaries, Inc., and sold in Boston by all Liggett's drug stores.—Adv.

'HEALER' TO GET CANCER TEST

Jersey City Health Head to Try Out "Miracle Worker"

Jersey City, N. J., April 22.—Developments came thick and fast today in the investigation of the amazing claims of P. D. Fanoulias, Greek healer and "miracle worker," whose mysterious power has aroused the people of this city and caused them to besiege the board of health by thousands asking if the things they hear can possibly be true.

A wealthy man whose name the board withholds has offered to put up a large sum of money for the building of a Fanoulias sanatorium if the Greek can cure his nineteen-year-old daughter of paralysis.

The girl's case has been officially submitted to the healer and is now under treatment. Its progress is being carefully checked.

Bellevue Hospital, New York, is combing its records, by request, for histories of cases alleged to have been pronounced incurable there, which Fanoulias claims he has cured.

James J. Hagan, head of the Board of Health of this city, in the interest of getting at the truth for the public's sake, is preparing to submit an attested case of cancer for treatment. He has already submitted twenty-two other test cases of alleged incurable diseases.

Special interest attaches to the subject of cancer because the Rockefeller Institute and other organizations have spent millions of dollars trying to find a cure.

In the face of intimations that he might be seeking money or publicity, Fanoulias produced evidence today that he had treated sufferers for several years before his name ever got into the newspapers.

Fanoulias is now treating an average of a thousand cases a week, and will accept no money or gifts from any of them.

ACCUSE RABBI'S WIFE OF SELLING WINE

Buffalo, N. Y., April 22.—Mrs. Rebecca Franklin, wife of Rabbi Abraham Franklin, was tried in Federal Court today on a charge of selling sacramental wine to a prohibition agent. If she is found not guilty, 200 gallons of wine seized will be returned.

JAP CLUB ROWS OVER RESOLVE

Fails to Pass a Resolution at Hotel Brunswick Condemning Alleged Discrimination

Charges of deception and the threat of one leading member to resign, followed the introduction of a resolve, at the meeting of the Japan Society of Boston at Hotel Brunswick, which stated that the society "looked with disfavor on any attempts now made to draw discriminating lines between Japanese and Americans because of difference in origin."

Dr. H. Kennedy declared he had understood the society was of a non-political nature. He threatened to resign claiming "we are jumping into the middle of the ring."

The Rev. Dr. Thomas Van Ness, who presided, reminded members that there was nothing in the resolution that hinted at California. Then Prof. Thomas N. Carver, Harvard economist, intervened.

"I feel," he said, "that I have been deceived—bunco ed. As one interested in peace with Japan, I am opposed to this resolution. I am in favor of supporting California."

After further discussion, the resolution along with one referring to the reduction of armaments and another favoring a bill opposed to the shipment of narcotics, was referred back for amendment by a committee to be appointed by the executive board of the society.

"Good Luck" Purveyor Held for Witchcraft

New Brunswick, N. J., April 22.—"Keep smiling and I'll make you happy for the rest of your life," said "Professor" H. I. Ramapo, of Midtown, entering in a man who, he thought, came in quest of his fortune, to sell secret remedy for all earthly ills.

"You're under arrest for practising witchcraft," said the man, revealing himself as Police Officer Frank Kirby.

The warrant was sworn to by Mrs. Hilda Hokshelt, of New Brunswick, who said the "professor" had put her under the "spell" by his "supernatural powers" and given her a "good luck powder" for $5, then grabbed her pocketbook containing another $13.

Filene's—Constant change, better values

BY A SYSTEM of constant daily clearances, Filene stocks are always changing. Nothing is permitted to remain here overlong. This means not only "first with the new"; it means, too, that we can take advantage of sudden "breaks" of the market, that it costs us less to do business through smaller interest charges; that we sell goods when they are wanted, not passe, and that we can because of these things give better values.

TITLE TEST WORRIES UNTWISTED BY EDITOR

At the Same Time He Reminds All That Final Picture Will Be Printed Wednesday

Reminding everybody that the Final Picture in the $5,000 Picture-Play Title Test will be printed on Wednesday of next week, and that the time for mailing packages of Titles will end at midnight one week from tonight, the Title Test Editor gives his space today to the perplexities of correspondents:

M. G., Roxbury—I am not permitted to say "whether the same title has been picked for more than one picture." If there has been a duplicated the Tester must find it.

G. M. C., Brockton—That picture of Clara Kimball Young was taken in Japan during her recent tour of the world. She wore the national costume. I was quite certain that that picture would be a "sticker." It is copyrighted by Underwood & Underwood and came here to be used in the Picture Page.

A. B., Brockton—"Please advise me," you write, "if the written matter on some of the Test Pictures has any bearing towards the solution of the title, or if I am to pay attention to the pictures alone." My dear!

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

A. H. W.—Certainly.

J. B., Springfield—Have two pictures been printed that would take the same title? What do YOU say?

T. F. H., Brockton—Forget them both. Immaterial.

"J."—You're right; the Rules provide that one may send in "either the picture or a copy thereof." Do so it!

Adele Pate—Thank you for "dem kind words." Glad you and the Missus have enjoyed it. Never had so much fun in my life! Enclosed please find the dime you were pinned out of.

F. S., Quincy—Write the New England address, from now on, and be sure to write it on the outside of your parcel.

Isabel—The small re-prints will be quite as acceptable as full-size pictures. No question will be raised about the size of the picture. It's the title, old dear.

Anxious, Quincy—The method you describe is admirable. "G. A. S." has blown out.

La Sœur d'Henri—Je desire vous ecrire. Donnez-moi votre address et le nom de la ville. Depechez-vous, je vous prie.

DO YOUR BEST.

F. M. D., Waltham—Do your best and all will be forgiven. Why not try the tracing-paper method? Why do you say wait for you "on the back step," when I bring the thousand? Has the landlord closed the front entrance?

Bonehead, Manchester, N. H.—Don't go pawing over the List of Titles of several days or weeks ago looking for a title to yesterday's picture. Remember that the correct title to today's picture is in today's list. This is true always. By the way, if a train going 100 miles an hour carries fifty passengers, what's the conductor's name?

F. M. W., Beverly—Your question is too much for me. Find some friend who is in the Test and who will let you study his List of Titles for the day.

Rochester Fan—It doesn't matter. There is no Test Picture to fit either of them. I wrote it "P-r-i-c-e," however.

C. H. S., Pawtucket—Concerning the puzzling Clara Kimball Young picture, please see answer above to G. M. C. of Brockton. Marguerite Armstrong is one of Universal's stars.

HOW ABOUT ADDRESS?

Rounder, Westbrook—So if I do not give you a prize this time you won't like me any more? The way some of the girls are today talk to a "decent married man" is simply outrageous. By the way, you forgot to give me your address.

Hahn of Troop G—Thank you for the picture of Monte Carlo. Win the thousand and we'll go over. I know a "system." Is Burlington dry?

Anxious, Burlington—I think that was quite obviously an error. I refer to the failure of somebody to correct the two or three lines of type over last Sunday's list of Titles in order that they might refer to the "correct title of Picture No. 58." The change was not made. "No. 43" was permitted to stand. Take it from me that Sunday's correct title was in the Sunday list. I have explained the other matter time and time again. See Mr. Margulis, in Main street.

M. C. H., Brookline—If you change your titles every time some friend knows better you will be in an awful mess. Your method of pasting is quite correct. It isn't any "bother" to answer questions. All in the day's work, and I like it. Please don't set your heart on earning one of the larger awards. I should be glad to have you take one of them, but remember that there are at least 40,000 persons in this Test, and some of them—believe me—are darned clever.

Autolnuts, Somewhere in Quebec—For the second time a letter addressed to you at Lennoxville has come back to me marked "not called for." You write to me from Sherbrooke and give me an address that looks like "Tennoueville." The best I could do with it, after studying the reference books, was Leonardville. Where art thou?

FAVORITE THEATRE GONE.

Quiet F. C., Easthampton—My favorite theatre isn't any more. It was Austin & Stone's.

E. A. J., Berlin, N. H.—Missing pictures will count as "incorrect."

C. F. F., Gardner—The correct title is printed with the Test Picture. Don't go astray.

R. C. Case—I am quite sure you exaggerate the matter.

M. A. Simmons, Swift street, New Bedford—I have received both your letters and have answered one by mail. I think every participant in the Test will be interested in your complaint that we used a picture of "Mr. Julian Eltinge dressed as a woman." Also in your question: "And who, please tell me, is Mr. Howland Blinn?"

Maude, Manchester, N. H.—Write on better paper, if you like, the information called for by the coupon.

W. R. R.—Pittsfield—Try T. F. Shay, at No. 1 Melville street. Missing pictures will be counted as "incorrect titles." Couldn't you make a copy?

Jacqueline, Pittsfield, Me. — Oh, don't drop out, even if you are "shy" three pictures. Try Morris A. Spector, No. 76 Exchange street, Bangor. If he hasn't got the papers he can give you the name of some participant who will let you make tracing-paper copies. Send along fifty-seven pictures if you must, however, and the missing three will be counted "incorrect."

PLANS BUREAU OF RECREATION

Secretary Davis Suggests Lodging Prohibition Enforcement in It

Washington, April 22—Declaring that "Recreation is the only effective substitute for beer," Secretary Davis announced today that he is planning the establishment of a Bureau of Recreation in the Department of Labor.

"I want to make the bureau a centre for drafting plans to be administered by local civic authorities," explained Davis.

"These plans should include national games, such as Olympic meets, target shooting, baseball and football matches on a civic scale. Supervision of motion pictures by which the tastes and ideals of all immigrants and of children are formed, and promotion of amateur drama that will give an outlet for the dramatic and artistic talent of the people.

"It has even been suggested to me by a high authority that the prohibition unit should be abolished and the enforcement lodged in a recreation bureau, since enforcement of prohibition is primarily a problem of recreation."

WANTS ARMISTICE DAY AS LEGAL HOLIDAY

Washington, April 22.—Congressman Frothingham of Dedham has introduced a bill in Congress, at the request of the national council of the American Legion, to make November 11, Armistice Day, a legal holiday.

Midget Assaults Big Freight Handler

New York, April 22.—Ernest Cappelman, whose bulk looms large as guard at the freight house door of the Ringling-Barnum-Bailey circus at Madison Square Garden, made a hasty exit today.

As he galloped down the runway he was closely pursued by Guiseppe Bignoli, the three-foot-two midget.

The midget walloped the big guy with his cane and then went out to get a gun.

Cappelman caused the little fellow's arrest. Friends interceded, the midget promised to pick only on people of his size and the charge was dropped.

Magistrate Tobias in the Yorkville court, however, held him in bail for special sessions for violating the fire arms law.

MAGAZINE BEACH HOUSE FITTED FOR 1,500 BATHERS

Magazine Beach bathhouse on the Charles is being thoroughly renovated, under the direction of the Metropolitan District Commission. The bathhouse will be one of the finest in the State when the season opens. There will be about 1,500 suits available.

32 POLISH FAMILIES TO LEAVE WESTFIELD

Westfield, April 22.—Rather than remain idle here in the industrial depression, thirty-two Polish families will leave May 1 for their native land, and take $70,000 they have saved in this country. Foundries where the men have worked are closed.

SHOTS FIRED AT AUTO THIEVES

Trio Abandon Car After Chase by Police Through Melrose Centre

Three automobile thieves were forced to abandon a car which they stole from John E. Locatelli, No. 76 Belmont street, Somerville, after a chase through Melrose, during which six shots were fired by their pursuers.

The car was again in Locatelli's possession today but the thieves were at large.

The automobile was stolen from in front of the Somerville High School.

Driving through Melrose Centre about an hour later in a friend's car, Locatelli saw his machine and with his friend followed it until they found a policeman.

The officer, Patrolman Harold Wheeler, from a running board fired six shots at the fleeing automobile as they passed Melrose City Hall. Other policemen attracted by the noise joined the pursuit in commandeered cars, but the thieves, who were all described, managed to elude their pursuers.

Turning into Linden street, in the Greenwood section of Wakefield, they abandoned the car and escaped.

TITLE TEST RULES

The Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser's New Movie Play Title Test is a test of skill and judgment open to all readers of the Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred and fifty cash awards will be given by these two newspapers to their readers who submit the largest percentages of correct titles to the 60 pictures to be published one each day consecutively in the Daily American and Sunday Advertiser.

All employees of the Boston American, the Boston Sunday Advertiser, and their families are absolutely barred from participating in this Award.

The Title will consist of 60 pictures, representing the title of a Moving Picture Play, to be printed one each day in the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, first picture, Sunday, February 27, 1921.

Participation in any other contest which has been run, which is now running or which may be run by the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser will not debar anyone from entering this test.

Every participant or any or all members of a family will be allowed to submit one set of pictures, but each must contain only ONE TITLE for each picture, and no participant shall be entitled to more than one award and not more than one award will be given in any one family.

Each correct title must be neatly written or printed in ink on coupons published by the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser, or on a pen or pencil copy thereof, and must have the name, residence, age of the participant on each title blank.

Each set of titles must be signed in ink. I. e., do not write titles under one another on a piece of paper.

In case there are not complete sets of correct titles, awards will be given to the person submitting the nearest correct solution, giving weight to skill and judgment.

In case of a tie, awards will be made on the basis of neatness, judgment and accuracy.

All titles must be delivered to the Boston American Movie Play Title Headquarters, at No. 85 Summer street, Boston, Mass., either by mail or in person within the specified time limit. They will be numbered, dated, time and envelope or package received. Movie Play Title Headquarters, 85 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., P. O. Box 2387, and each envelope or package must bear the name and address of the sender legibly written or printed in the upper left-hand corner.

As all pictures in the Test will contain written or printed titles, it is therefore absolutely necessary that the packages be published in the Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser on the specified days of the issues mailed. The Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser reserve the right to refuse to consider any sets of titles on which postage for first class matter has not been fully prepaid.

There will be no title or answer book to be published in the Test. Titles will be printed in the Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser only. The corresponding title certain among others the correct title.

Duplicate awards will be given where duplication should address their identical to the Movie Play Title Headquarters, 85 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass. Questions will be answered by mail only. Address Movie Play Title Editor, Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser. Contestants desire personal replies, should enclose sufficient postage for such reply or call any phone Main 5100 or call in person.

The Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser reserves the right to make any change in, or addition to these conditions that they may deem necessary for fairly and properly conducting the Test, and the decision of the Boston American and Title Editor of the Boston American shall be final and binding on all contestants, without recourse to any legal proceedings whatsoever.

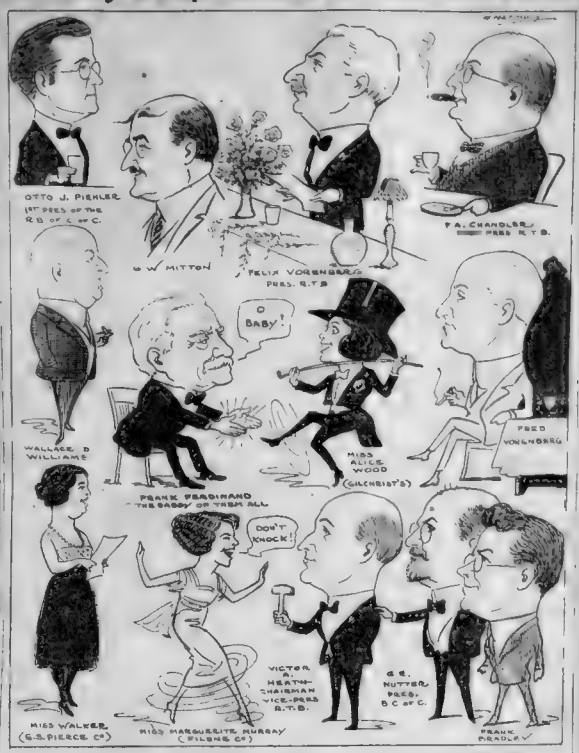
Harmony's Impressions of Hub Store Men



The growth of better business ethics and better fellowship between employer and employe through the work of the retail trade board of the Chamber of Commerce were pointed out to 800 representatives of the 110 Boston stores affiliated with the board by Felix Vorenberg at a "get together" dinner in the Hotel Vendome.

"Merchants are no longer discourteous to their competitors and have come to the conclusion that we are all here for the same purpose," said Mr. Vorenberg who is president of the retail trade board. Mr. Vorenberg reviewed the activities of the board which has fifteen committees constantly at work, brought about uniform summer hours, closing and standard business hours, encouraged early Christmas shopping, established medical supervision for employes and, recently, arranged art lectures that have aroused remarkable interest among the employes.

George R. Nutter, president of the chamber, urged the cultivation of city trade to keep Boston abreast of the menacing competition of other business centres. Other speakers were Victor A. Heath, vice-president of the board, and Frank Ferdinand, dean of Boston merchants by a career of more than fifty years; Otto J. Piehler, first president of the board, and P. Alexander Chandler, former president, were present.

Singing during and entertainment music were rendered by employes of the various stores under the direction of H. L. Harlan.

Daugherty Forced to Keep Late Hours

Washington, April 22—Because he was kept busy until late each night by attorneys with patronage hunters and other politicians that he has to transact the real business of the department of justice after midnight.

Asked when an opinion would be rendered as to whether records in connection with a registrant's name in the lists of draft evaders to be made public by the war department would permit the recovery of damages from the government, Attorney-General Daugherty said he would take the matter up at midnight.

"I have an appointment at that hour with my assistant," explained Daugherty, "and we hope as in other days, to complete some of the important matters now pending before the department."

You can arrive at only one conclusion—that the privilege of saying "Charge it" is a pretty expensive luxury. A large proportion of the price and quality advantages we give our customers is directly due to the fact that both our buying and selling are invariably done for cash.

Cash buying brings us important concessions from the manufacturers. Cash selling eliminates the inevitable losses and big overhead expense of a credit department. Thus we not only buy for less, but can also do business on a much smaller margin of profit.

This season our customers have another big advantage---that of doing business with a store that's 100 per cent back to normal, with all new merchandise at the new low prices---one of the very few stores in the country, we believe, that is thus situated.

Normalcy is plainly evident in these

SITUATION OF FRENCH INDUSTRIES IS CRITICAL

Paris, April 22.—A profound impression was created in all circles at the critical situation of French industries following the official report of export and import statistics which while at first sight appeared to be favorable, are now adversely criticised by all financial papers.

After discussing the trade revival of last year, Temps says editorially "Unfortunately the future presents itself much less brilliantly."

Financial authorities such as "Information," point out that the fall in exports is due to the diminution in imports of raw materials and are urging the government to throw down the trade barriers to free trade instead of the high tariffs which at present are throttling industries.

LOWER THE MONEY RATE TO AID NEW ISSUES

By BROADAN WALL.
Registered U. S. Patent Office

New York, April 22.—Strength in specialties with advances ranging from one to seven points characterized dealings in the stock market yesterday. Activity at advancing prices in Studebaker and Cosden Company shares were the outstanding features. Oil shares in general were strong and in good inquiry. More shares were also in good inquiry at higher quotations. Opening quotations for the most part showed gains. The undertone at the close was firm with the most active issues slightly under the best figures of the session.

Foreign exchange was slightly lower. Wheat advanced from one to two cents a bushel and cotton lost about half a dollar a bale.

Call money loaned at 6½ per cent [illegible] [illegible] to the fact that recently whenever a large [illegible] offered for sale there is a drop in the quotation for call money. The newspapers lay considerable stress on the decline and it that was direct attention to the liberal return on the new issue offered investors. One broker said it put him in mind of "chumming for blue fish."

The Union Trust Company, Cleveland, Ohio, Trustee

The mortgage will provide for the retirement of the entire issue at 120 and interest, by drawing by lot $750,000 bonds on each interest date, beginning November 1, 1921.

Assets—The balance sheet of The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, as prepared by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Company, as at February 28, 1921, but after giving effect to present financial readjustments, to the losses from operation during the period from October 31, 1920 to February 28, 1921, and to adjustments of inventories and provision against possible losses on raw materials under contract shows:

Are You Weak, Worn or Worried? Is Your Blood Thin and Watery

So that it makes you nervous, sleepless or easily fatigued? Don't wait until you collapse but commence to fortify your starving blood with iron today. How to do it.

If you are undergoing STRAIN, STRESS OR TROUBLE, don't forget that it is probably sapping the iron from your blood and that your RED BLOOD CORPUSCLES are likely DYING BY THE MILLIONS.

WHEN YOU FEEL THE FIRST WARNING SYMPTOMS—when you commence to lose your strength or vitality, don't sleep well at night, are highly nervous or irritable; get the "blues" easily; when your eyes begin to lose their lustre or brilliancy and the lid's are pale inside (a most important symptom) then is the time you should get busy and not wait until you go down in a state of complete nervous prostration or physical collapse.

A New York physician says that MORE THAN ONE-HALF THE POPULATION OF AMERICA PERISHES BEFORE MIDDLE AGE and that one of the chief contributary causes of this terrible waste of human life is the devitalizing weakness brought on by lack of iron in the blood.

THERE ARE 30 00 000 000 000 RED BLOOD CORPUSCLES IN YOUR BLOOD AND LACK ONE MUST HAVE IRON.

When your blood is starving for iron an anemic condition is the result, and you must have iron. To get iron you must eat the husks of grains and the peas and eaten of fruits and vegetables as mere fowlsters do, or take a little organic iron from time to time, and eat more such iron containing foods as spinach and apples. But be sure the iron you take is organic iron and not metallic or mineral iron which people usually take. Metallic iron is free but as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron and is not assimilated by the system. Organic iron is like the iron in apples which would end the list of vegetables and fruits and spinach. It must be had from your drugist in the form of Nuxated Iron. Nuxated Iron represents organic iron in such a way that one grain of Nuxated Iron is said to be equivalent to as much organic iron contained in eating half a quart of spinach or one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat.

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to take the following test. See how you stand at once and how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Many astonishing people are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. Nuxated Iron is sold by druggists in this city and is guaranteed to put at least fifty per cent. more strength and endurance into the system of any man or woman in two weeks' time or money will be refunded by the manufacturers. Nuxated Iron is not a patent medicine nor a secret remedy but one which is widely prescribed by physicians and is now being used by many prominent people in all walks of life. Ask your druggist for a copy of the latest Medical Work on Nuxated Iron recently published by the Nuxated Iron Laboratories, 25 Spruce St., New York City, which is being distributed free to all who write for it.

ALL'S WELL

The strikes that caused the wrinkles on our alabaster brow,
The lois of Yap, the cunning Jap, are all forgotten now.
And we can settle down in peace to eat our noonday lunch.
The world is back to normalcy—Babe Ruth has found his punch.
The diplomatic tangle with its deep and dark intrigue,
The heartless gents who raised the rents and filled us with fatigue
Are faded and forgotten and the world is full of mirth,
Babe Ruth has made his third home run and all is well on earth.

SNOW.

It kills the buds by woodland ways,
It wrecks the lilac sweet,
It breaks the tulip's heart and slays
The budding gate receipt.

THE SOUR NOTE.

When I was young I used to dote
On hazy days of June,
And yet there was a sour note
That always spoiled the tune.

They filled my heart with sweet content
And melodies sublime;
But, on the other hand, they meant
Examination time.

That assaulted his knees

Stop a Minute and—Think!

What does the price-tag show, anyhow?

And What Is Proved by Comparative Prices?

Good clothes are something more than cloth tagged with a price. Value is more than one group of figures measured against another.

What the tag says is immaterial—what the suit does is vital. Pen and ink can never make a cheap suit worth a fancy price, nor can the printed word persuade performance from clothing which lacks the things essential to continued service and fine appearance.

For real service there must be FABRICS selected by experts for quality alone. Added to fabrics must be DESIGN which produces style that is distinctive. Added to design must be WORKMANSHIP of the highest order, maintaining inflexible standards of excellence. Added to that must be an eagerness to stand unqualifiedly back of the performance of the garment in every detail.

These are the things that challenge anyone, anywhere to equal Morse values, price for price

CADDOCK AND ZBYSZKO DUE TOMORROW TO FINISH TRAINING

FORMER TO TAKE ON GARDINI

Latter, Who Later Is to Meet Lewis for Title, Will Oppose Russian Giant

Earl Caddock and Stan Zbyszko, the two big grapplers who will appear in the wrestling tournament at the New Boston Arena next Tuesday evening, will arrive in the Hub tomorrow and continue doing a little easy training for their coming contests against Renato Gardini and Jack Linow the first of the week.

Caddock realizes that he is tackling no easy customer when he meets the Italian for the world's light heavyweight title and he does not want to take any chances. Since the former champion lost the world's heavyweight crown to Joe Stecher and was in turn defeated twice by Strangler Lewis he has not been showing the greatest of form on the mat and for this reason all the Italians in the North End district believe that Gardini has a chance of a lifetime to beat the grappler with the "Thousand Holds."

Stan Zbyszko will be in prime fettle for his contest with Linow, the Russian Giant. The Pole is booked to meet Strangler Lewis for the world's heavyweight crown over in New York and he will use the Linow bout as a thorough working out for the mill with Lewis.

Besides the appearances of these grapplers, "Gobar," the Indian wrestler, will make his first appearance in the Hub when he is down to tackle Matt Henderson, the former Masked Marvel." " Gobar" did not make much of an impression when he first landed in this country and was defeated by Tom Drake in his initial appearance. He accounted for his defeat on account of the long trip from India to this country. Since his first defeat, however, he has gotten on to the American style of wrestling and not a feat, however, he has gotten on to the

RUTH GETS THIRD HOMER

Also Draws Fancy Salary
Green Back in Boxing Game
New Boxing Club Formed

By JACK CONWAY

Babe Ruth, King of Swat, got his third home run of the season against the Athletics. Last year Ruth established a new world's record for circuit smashes when he drove out fifty-four home runs. This season this sensational batter intends to strive for seventy-five home runs. This would be an impossible goal for any other ball player than Ruth. To Babe, nothing is impossible when it comes to hitting a baseball.

Of course Ruth would be still playing ball for the Red Sox if Handsome Harry Frazee had cared to pay this great star what Babe considered himself worth. But that is not here nor there, as they say out Commonwealth avenue way.

Babe Ruth, as ball player, receives between $15,000 and $20,000 a year from the Yankees. He earns $20,000 more playing in exhibition games. Another $10,000 is made by Babe from stories he writes for the newspapers and from minor propositions.

What would an actor with Ruth's drawing powers receive? At least sixty per cent. of the receipts. Maybe more. The difference between Ruth and an actor is that Babe, to be real successful, must be supported by a star cast. Then, too, if Organized Baseball should put the bars up on Babe he would not receive the publicity he is now getting as he would not be opposed by any real opposition on the ball field. And under such circumstances even the Batterer would find it difficult to secure headlines in the newspapers.

Roy Green has returned to the boxing game. He is doing the matchmaking for the Baldwin A. A., one of our numerous new boxing clubs. Green's first attraction will be offered at the Boston Arena next Monday night. It is a major league card. K. O. Loughlin meets Paul Doyle; Al Shubert battles Earl Baird; while Soldier Bartfield opposes Tommy Robson in the other bout. This show should go over big.

The Boston Arena Athletic Club is the latest addition to Boston's boxing clubs. The new organization is sure to establish itself as it has for officers men who believe doing business in a business way. It will stage its shows at the Arena, which will mean that the clubs which have been holding bouts at the St. Botoph street playhouse will have to secure new quarters.

WITH THE SCHOOLBOYS

By FRED C. LANE.

Dorchester High takes on Jer Green's team, representing South Boston High, at Dorchester today. This game should be a soft picking for Coach Prendergast's men, who have defeated English High, who in turn defeated South Boston. Both victories were by large scores.

Melrose journeys over to Watertown to play the latter today, weather permitting. Interest has been running high in the Mystic Valley League this season which is better illustrated by the large following that each team in the league has been playing to.

* * *

It certainly does look like a Cambridge Latin-Somerville fight in the Suburban League. For a time Newton was considered a strong contender, but the winning of their game with Brookline was due to luck rather than their playing.

* * *

For a brilliant player like Chase to drop that throw of Murray's was a sad break for the Brookline team. This mishap allowed Houlden, left fielder for Newton, to score the winning tally. It might be said that Houlden showed good knowledge of baseball by taking advantage of all the errors of the Brookline team while they were coming.

* * *

Brookline will always be a serious contender in the race regardless of this bit of hard luck. The team as a whole is a batting organization which can make trouble for the best of pitchers.

* * *

Blodgett, pitcher for Newton, is the only hurler in this league that has, up to date, had the team batting behind him. Last year Blodgett was considered one of the best pitchers in the league, but this season he has been pitching poor ball. He has been hitting the batters with ease, striking out ten men. The mighty poor work on the part of his mates, who had nine errors, is chalked against their record, was the real cause for Brookline ever appearing dangerous.

* * *

Coach McDonald of Malden has his Green Hill boys in baseball uniforms as was demonstrated in the game with Somerville High. Although on the short end of the score, they appeared to be dangerous at times. Coach McLoughlin of Somerville had Currier and Wickerson, both pitchers, warming up, to stem the tide of battle.

* * *

Hamilton, who plays third base for Malden, had little trouble solving the benders of Bennie Simpson, who was doing the hurling. In four times at the plate he got three safeties. He is mighty good at the bat and always takes into consideration the strength of the opposing pitcher.

* * *

In Sprague, right fielder for Somerville, Coach McLaughlin has a find. This lad makes the hardest kind of flies look as easy as the soft ones, leading them in with the least possible effort. Although he is weak at the bat he is sure to improve, being a steady man and a first class player on the fast nosing Somerville nine.

* * *

Peabody High too Revere High to camp at the local grounds with Revere High getting two of the hits. Only in one inning did Revere look dangerous, but tightening up on the part of Pitcher Swanson, who hurled for Peabody, also played with the infield brought the batting eye of the seashore boys to a sudden halt.

* * *

This was the first defeat of the season for Harry Campbell, who has done the bulk of the pitching for Coach Lawrence's team. Up to date he has been allowing each team an average of but five hits per game.

* * *

Bill Fallon, who has elevating himself into the ranks of the no-hit pitchers, boy pitchers to down in [illegible] Milton against Quincy [illegible] Quincy High is not considered a bad team which will give Hill another chance to prove his recent achievement.

RED SOX CONVINCE FANS THEY STILL PACK VICTORY WALLOP

TEAM WILL NEED STAR PITCHING

McInnis and Scott Are Still Playing Their Usual Brilliant Game

By NICK PLATEK.

Everybody was chock full of ginger, and all that sort of stuff in the Red Sox camp today. Manager Huggy Duffy has an idea he has a perfectly good ball club. Said opinion is also held by the noble athletes themselves as well as the fans who saw the team in its opening home game of the season.

Of course the Sox and Senators were not a bit pessed when they opened their optimistic eyes and discovered that somebody had opened the flood gates. But such little things are merely a part of the grand old game of baseball. Everybody had hopes that it would eventually stop raining.

The glow of the introductory triumph is likely to give one a wrong notion at matters, but the most cold-blooded bird in the world must admit that fairly good pitching will make the Frazee grand contenders for a share in the upper division, no matter how torrid the going gets.

That conference between Stuffy McInnis and Harry Frazee was to take place at high noon today. Accent on the high, because Stuffy wants a lot of jack to continue being the greatest first baseman in captivity. From what we gather he has been promised the salary he wants (as born paid all back bonuses and is now merely waiting to have the whole thing put in writing.

Stuffy has been underpaid for so many great seasons on the bag that you can hardly blame him. But there isn't any doubt that he is to be just as much a fixture at the first corner of the diamond as the straps around the pillow.

He hasn't had much Spring training, but he made a debut that showed baseball never bothered by Hal Chase, or Jiggs Donohue, or any of the other masters of first base play. Incidentally he was hitting the ball harder than his brother Sot. He's worth more than any kind of a contract he can pull down.

Luck was always with the great old Red Sox, and it rooted with the new club for the opening joust. A bunt that rolled foul, three fair, and a grounder that careened wildly off third base, manufactured the lone tally that meant glory.

To be sure, Sam Jones deserved a victory, if ever a pitcher did. The Senators are no mean artillerists, but Samuel had them as helpless as a henpecked husband at a suffrage meeting. Just one enemy got as far as second base in the nine chapters. Judge arrived there in the seventh on a hot single and a sad de. But that was the only inning in which more than three men came to bat.

Four visitors reached, in all. Two of them were snuffed out at second on double plays, and another cut down trying to steal. Jones was really great, and his support was in accord. Let Samuel continue to chuck as he has been doing thus far and he'll show the way to all the flingers in the circuit.

In addition to his splendid hexing he chopped out the hit that knocked off the all important score. 'Twas a very large occasion for "Horsewhips."

Scotty played his 858th consecutive large league contest and never showed more brilliant form in any of the preceding 664. Grand stops and deadly throws cut down four possible hits and exploded every embryo Senator surge.

Remarkable outfielding prevented the Red Sox from staging a big inning in the fifth. Meusel sent a safety through the box with one gone, and put things on to Hendryx. Timothy knotted the catch mercilessly and the ones that should go toward right looked a lot like a triple. But the flying Mean got under the ball somehow, stuck up his glove and hauled down the sphere.

After Pratt had been passed Collins connected sturdily and propelled a long fly for the fence in left centre. But our old friend, Duffy Lewis, went back and up his own ledge of jore and captured the baseball before he served back onto the flat. Duffy remembers the years he spent happily tramping that patrol.

JOHN SMITH, JERSEY BOXING HEAD, DEAD

Atlantic City, N. J., April 22.—John B. Smith president of the New Jersey Boxing Commission died at the Hotel Whitehall after a three days' illness following an operation for intestinal trouble. The state commission will meet tomorrow at the Atlantic City Hotel to act on the appointment of a successor of Smith, it is announced, including the following:

Smith was fifty-eight years old and the father of Joe Smith, president of the Camden sportsmen's club and promoter of a number of large boxing bouts held in the Third Regiment Armory in Camden.

Smith was for a number of years one of Camden's well known sporting men. He was famous in boxing circles.

BAKER REINSTATED IN BASEBALL BY LANDIS

New York, April 22.—Colonel Jacob Ruppert, president and half owner of the New York Americans, announced that he had received word officially from Judge K. M. BRAVES TO FIGHT FOR REVENGE

Mitchell's Men Eager to Come Back After Defeat in Opening Game

Brooklyn, April 22.—The Braves went right back at the Dodgers today, confident they would get a flock of revenge for their defeat in the opening game of the series on a 4 to 3 count. The Mitchell band is battling the old again hard and is liable to upset the hopes of any ball club.

Up to the eighth it was a pitchers' battle between Watson and Burleigh Grimes, Grimes was pitching his first game of the year, he having held out all the way before coming here to open in Boston on April 13. Each had allowed four hits and no runs in the first seven innings. Watson opened the eighth for the Braves by walking Powell's sacrifice, singles by Barbare and Southworth and a double steal by Barbare and Southworth, who had forced Southworth, saved the Braves their two runs in a scrap that was destined to be 4 to 3.

Watson had a nice lead of 2 to 0 when he started the eighth, but the real excitement was not to begin until Neis and Johnston, first two men to waddle toward bat, Neis's was in front of Johnston's and then the two deep thinkers.

Neis Drove in Three Runs and Won Game

Neis is a bat made little Herr Neis look like a Babe Ruth when he came to the second inning and started his performance in the fourth, which was good in the seventh. The little fellow Watson decided to pass Myers, filling the bases and take a chance on Neis. If he had done more studying and less independent thinking he would have known that Myers had a record of having made two hits in 26 times at bat this year, while Neis had twice made 4 out of 5 each time.

Myers was passed as per expectations. Watson got a couple of threes and two on the deep end Neis and then had to put it over the plate. It stood like a punch plaster to Neis and he whanged the ball over third for a double that scored Johnston. Wheat and Myers and won the game.

Thus far the Braves have a record of losing their first game with the Dodgers, winning the next four and losing the sixth. If Grimes is to continue pitching as he did the Dodgers will once more become formidable, but except for the wild streak in the eighth, Watson was even more effective than Grimes, who led the National League pitchers last year in winning percentage.

Fred Nicholson a pinch-hit of Rice in the ninth on three difficult chances was the best the present writer ever saw him display.

Gink Used Mountains as Sparring Partners

By "BUGS" BAER

To the Misled Readers:

What good is a pair of suspenders without buttons? Would we have heard of Gink Fowler if it hadn't been for his sparring partner? This man was none other than Tubby Black, who was chummier than a mad wolf. He challenged Gink to a Summer fight, Winter take all. The Kaiser saw this scuffle and it gave him the idea for the World War.

Gink started out like a red hot furnace. Tubby soon turned his dust damper down, put out the fire and the janitor wheeled away Gink's ashes.

Yours until Gabriel pumps away at that slide trombone,

JOHN FREEZE, Chicago.

This nonsense gets more serious every day. The champion of Roughtown had no sparring partner. He used to punch mannikins and improve his footwork by sparring with the cornerstones of buildings. He pulled down Bunker Hill monument one day and skipped rope with it. He got real mad when he found the engineer of the Roughtown R. R. using his dinner plate as a turntable for locomotives.

He never jumped at conclusions. He considered work a conclusion, therefore he never jumped at a job.

He was supported by the interest of his numerous investments in Roughtown inventions. Spotless dice were invented in Roughtown. Rangless saddles, boodleless soup and eggless omelets were also sprangled ideas of that town's genius.

Tubby Black was just a barkdoor baker. Pie as the windup all was his idea of a formal dinner. He could bake in a smooth, city way. But smoothness never got you anything in Roughtown. If a boy came to school with a muddy complexion the teacher would send him home to have his face sandpapered. Everything was rough.

Gink only made one swish at Tubby and he folded up like a trick tobacco pouch. He lasted about as long as a good resolution. Just like a moonbeam on a jumping frog's back. Roughtown was the Marne of many a fighting man, but Tubby went out ker then a mushroom arrives. He was as wide open as a secret on a postal card. Gink saved enough money on that fight to ride half way home.

BALDWIN SHOW GOING BIG

Great Call for Advance Reservations for First Meeting of New Club

Better proof of the interest which is being taken in the extra classy program of boxing arranged by the newly organized Baldwin A. A. to be seen Monday next at the Arena could not be wanted than the demand for advance reservations which have been made to date by the fans.

The chance of seeing Tommy Robson of Malden battling Soldier Bartfield of New York, of watching K. O. Loughlin trying to make one to one heavy hay-makers land on a vital spot on Paul Doyle, of looking at Al Shubert demonstrating to Earl Baird of Seattle that we of this section still have tough little fellows, all this is prompting the boxing-loving public to get in early. The big crowds of the past few shows have served as a lesson to those who want better seats.

ASKED PROOF OF RUBE'S DIVORCE

Pittsburgh's Alderman Balks Marquad's Effort to Re-Wed Mrs. Naomi Malone

Pittsburgh, April 22.—Rube Marquard, star pitcher of the Cincinnati Reds, who married Mrs. Naomi Malone in Elkins, W. Va., three weeks ago attempted to repeat the ceremony here. He was unable to present a copy of the divorce decree freeing him from his former wife, Blossom Seeley, a vaudeville actress, however and Alderman Riley refused to perform the ceremony.

Marquard said he would go to Beaver County for the ceremony as an affidavit as to the securing of the decree said that he registered there. He explained that the time between his divorce and the marriage three weeks ago was not sufficient to make the second marriage legal in all States and that he wished to go through the second ceremony for this reason as the necessary time has now elapsed.

ROXBURY RED SOX HAVE STONG NINE

The Roxbury Red Sox, one of Boston's foremost baseball teams, under the management of Joseph Donnel, former Western League ball player, are again in the field, and desire games with the Cornets of Lynn, Attleboro, Douglas Shoe and Brennan Shoe.

It will be remembered that the Roxbury team displayed plenty of class last year with "Buck" O'Brien, former Red Sox player, pitching superb form. The lineup this year is as follows: Linberg, Hallegan, O'Neil, Rockwood and Corver, infielders; Lally, Howard, Hardy and Wallace, outfielders; Loftus, catcher, and O'Brien, McDonald and Cassell make up the pitching staff.

On next Monday evening in Intercolonial Hall, Roxbury, the Red Sox will hold their fifteenth dance and hall. The entire proceeds will be turned into the baseball fund to be expanded in the maintenance and upkeep of the baseball team.

TAD'S TIDBITS

FRISCO OLD TIMERS HELP IRISH FUND

They held an "OLD TIMERS' NIGHT" last week in Frisco for the benefit of the Irish sufferers and it proved to be a oneter success.

The main event was a three-round bout between Jimmy Britt and Eddie Hanlon. That bout alone was enough to fill a hall. For years and years Frisco sports waited for a Hanlon-Britt fight. Britt said time and again that he could lick Hanlon, yet he'd never agree to fight.

Well, on "Old Timers' Night" they met and went three rounds. There was no blood spilled. Jimmy and Eddie are old now, but there is a bit of pride still in them. James danced away as of yore and Eddie ripped and tore as he did when he was sweet sixteen. There was no winner.

There were other bouts, too.

Al Nell, one of the greatest welterweights that ever lived, met his old rival, George Green, once more.

Frankie Nell, once bantam champion, who knocked Harry Forbes kicking, met Harry Baker in a bout.

Alex Greggians, who made a rep against Sharkey and Buffalo Costello, met Jack Steitzner, the old heavy, who trained Fitz years ago.

Kid McFadden, who fought before the King of England and was a terror in his time, boxed Bobby Johnson, an old Frisco favorite.

Toby Irwin, the North Beach idol, boxed Kid Herman, who tried to tried to wrest the title from Joe Gans once. (He was satisfied with one try.)

As referees for the night there were Johnny Hergert (Young Mitchell), Jim Griffin, Phil Wand, Jack Welch, Tiv Kreling and Bob McArthur.

Among others who helped out the show were Deacon Jones, Jimmy Anthony and Tim McGrath.

For the past three years Broadway's star actors have tried to bumble New York's cartoonists on the diamond, and each time, like the redskins of Nick Carter's day, the actors "bit the dust."

They claim they lost last year's contest because the umpire happened to be a newspaper reporter that cheated a bit for the pen pushers.

As the score was 17 to 3, you can see how he must have cheated, eh? Anyway, in today's mail we received this letter:

GREAT NECK, L. I.

My Dear Tad:

Not being satisfied with the result of the baseball game of last season, I hereby challenge you to a return game under the same auspices and conditions as last year, with one reservation, viz.:

That the umpire be chosen from your immediate family. I say this in the belief that he could not be MORE interested in having you win than the one you had last year.

With best wishes for your coming defeat,

Cordially yours,
FRANK CRAVEN.

So we immediately sat down and tore off the following to the noted thespian:

Mr. Frank Craven,

My Dear Frank—We gladly accept your challenge. We wish to inform you, however, that a regulation baseball team has but three outfielders. Last year you had three in EACH field.

A regulation infield consists of four men and a pitcher. Last year you not only had two third basemen and two shortstops, but on first you had what appeared to be the entire cast from the Hippodrome.

That game lasted six innings, yet only ONE-THIRD of your team got to bat.

We will have nine men on our team this year as usual. Our hope is that you'll come this time with that number.

Last year when your team came on the field the crowd thought a rehearsal of Ben Hur was coming off.

You should have been advertised as "Frank Craven and a cast of 2,000."

Yours for another pasting,
TAD.

THIS is the anniversary of the birth, in 1766, of Mme. de Stael, largely responsible for the French romantic movement, and one of the most admired women of her time. She was unattractive personally. She died in 1817.

The House of Wood

WOOD is a splendid non-conductor of heat. Tests have been made showing the properly built wood house is exceptionally warm in Winter and cool in Summer, and that a wood roof is superior to slate or almost any other material.

FOR LOVE

AN ABSORBING TALE BY RUBY M. AYERS

SHE raised her eyes with sudden pathos in them; Philip was looking at her steadily, and for the moment she forgot the strained relationship that existed between them, and remembered only her anxiety for her brother; she stretched her hand to him across the table. "Oh, do you think that Miss Arlington means to marry Peter?" she appealed.

Philip did not answer at once; his eyes wandered to the hand that wore his ring and back again to her face; his voice was rather brusque when he spoke.

"No, I never did think so," he said.

She gazed at him, the color flushing her face.

"Oh—what—do you mean?" she asked at last.

Philip shrugged his shoulders.

"You asked me, and I have told you what I think. It may sound brutal, but . . . well, you know as well as I do that she can't ever have really cared for him . . . he's too young—too . . ."

Eva raised passionate eyes.

"Too much like me, I suppose you mean?" she finished for him. "You mean that nobody could ever care for us except for our money, is that it?"

She did not wait for his reply. "If it's that," she said hoarsely, "He ought to be glad if she throws him over now and ends it; he ought to be glad if she doesn't marry him . . . Oh, if I could only tell him!" She stopped, afraid of her own intensity.

Philip had turned very white.

"You mean . . . you mean that it's as bad as that—being married—to me?" he asked.

Eva controlled herself with an effort; she tried to laugh.

"Well," she said, shakily, "we're not—very—happy—either of us—are we?"

"No."

"And I'm so fond of Peter," she went on. "I couldn't bear to see his life spoilt."

"Peter will have to look after himself and get out of his troubles—like the rest of us—as best he can," he said rather drearily.

Peter Looked Happy

Peter looked quite happy when he turned up at lunch time; Kitty had managed to get out of her engagement for the evening, he announced, and he was taking her out to dinner.

"She wants you and Phil to come, too," he said. "You will, won't you, Bonnie?" He fidgeted with his collar.

"You hardly know her at all, you know," he pleaded. "And she is so anxious for you both to come."

Eva was conscious of a little pang; of course, it was Philip whom Kitty wanted; she laughed as she turned away.

"I'll come if you really mean it. I don't know about Philip—you'd better ask him."

So Peter asked him and he accepted. Calligan was also named in the party.

Philip and Eva were to go together and while they waited for the taxi Philip took a step toward her. "Eva"—he spoke her name hoarsely; he half held out his hand.

"Mr. Calligan" said the maid at the door.

Eva gave a long sigh. She said afterward that she felt as if someone had pushed her out of heaven as Calligan came smilingly into the room.

It was not his fault, poor man. The arrangement had been of Eva's own making, only she had forgotten it; but she felt that she almost hated him as he came to her now, sure of his welcome.

Philip had gone into the hall. The taxi was at the door and he went out on to the sidewalk, bareheaded as he was, and stood there in the darkness.

He could have struck Calligan with pleasure, but he was not sure that he did not owe him some gratitude.

He had been on the verge of making a fool of himself once again, he supposed, and Calligan had prevented it.

He sat beside Eva in the taxi because Calligan insisted, but he kept as far away from her as possible, though the consciousness of her near presence went to his head like wine, and the longing to touch her, to just lay his hand on hers, was almost irresistible.

Heard Her Laugh

Once the sudden swerving of the taxi threw her lightly against his arm, and he heard her laugh nervously in the darkness. He wondered what she was thinking; what sort of a snubbing she would have dealt out to him this time but for Calligan's timely interruption.

He could not guess from the way in which she talked trivialities and kept up a fire of banter with his friend that her heart was bleak with disappointment, or that she was merely riding in a shabby, rather stuffy taxicab instead of the fairy coach with golden wheels which for one mad moment she had imagined was to carry her and Philip to the land where dreams come true.

"I'm going to enjoy myself tonight," she said flippantly.

"I hope Peter has ordered a good dinner—that sounds greedy, doesn't it?" She laughed. "I never thought the time would ever come when I should look forward to what I was going to eat, but it has! I wonder what is the sign of—advancing age, do you think, Mr. Calligan?"

"Hunger, I should think," he answered laughingly. "Anyway, here we are, so you won't have long to wait."

He got out first, and as he gave her his hand he saw her face in the light from the big restaurant to which they were going. She looked like a flushed, radiant child who had been wakened from sleep by the kiss of a fairy prince.

She went on up the steps ahead of him and he followed soberly with Philip.

Peter and Kitty were waiting for them. Peter looked rather downcast—Kitty had not been kind; she had blamed him for coming alone to fetch her—it looked so absurd, she said pettishly; why could he not have waited for Philip—and the others?

Her eyes went straight to Philip as he joined them; Peter's jealous eyes saw a difference in the smile with which she greeted his brother-in-law.

Peter Silent

But for Calligan the dinner would have been a failure. Peter was silent and moody. Kitty drank a little too much champagne, and her laugh was a little too loud sometimes and her voice too shrill.

She sat between Phil and Peter, and the white shoulder with its too slender strap was nearly always turned to Peter. She talked to Philip almost exclusively, and Calligan wondered that his friend could be so foolish as to permit it.

She was not in the same class with Eva, he thought with loyal indignation. Kitty might have a line of ancestors that dated back to the Flood for all he knew or cared, but her small, dolly prettiness was as a rushlight compared with the sunshine of the dear woman whom he loved.

He woke from the reverie into which he had fallen to hear Kitty say:

"Do you remember the last time we were here, Phil? How long ago is it? We sat over at that table in the corner there. Do you remember. And you bought some pink roses——"

"Because you asked for them, Miss Arlington, I'll be bound," Calligan struck in laughingly.

Kitty turned on him angrily. She did not like Calligan.

"I have never been in the unfortunate position of having to ask Philip for anything," she said.

Eva bit her lip to hide its trembling. Her eyes sought her husband's, but he was too intent on Kitty, and with an effort she controlled herself.

She was sorry for Peter. Her heart ached when she looked at his pale, sullen face. She was angry with Philip. She was used to being hurt by him, but now he was including Peter, too, she felt it was more than she could stand.

She deliberately devoted herself to Calligan. He was ready enough to talk to her, but tonight even his devotion and admiration passed her by. She longed for the dinner to end.

Would things have been any different if Calligan had not come? she wondered. What would Philip have said to her that moment in the drawing room had there been no interruption?

Met His Eyes

Only once did she succeed in meeting his eyes, and then the hard bitterness of them made her heart leap.

Was he—oh, could he be jealous after all? But he looked away so quickly she could not be sure.

It had come on to rain heavily when they left the restaurant, and there was trouble in getting taxis.

"We can't all go in one, that's very sure," Calligan said cheerily, when only one was forthcoming. He looked round at Peter. "Who's going in this?" he asked. "Will you, Mrs. Winterdick?"

Eva moved a step toward her husband. It required almost a physical effort for her to shrink.

"Philip—shall we—will you—shall you and I——"

He looked down at her with dispassionate eyes.

"No, that's not fair!" he said, laughing a little wildly. "An old married couple like we are! I'm going to take Miss Arlington if she will have me . . ."

Kitty laughed shrilly.

"Of course I will—come along!" She slipped a hand through his arm. Eva had fallen back. She was trembling, so she could hardly stand. For a moment everything swam dimly before her eyes. Like one in a dream she saw Philip hand Kitty into the taxi—saw Peter push Calligan aside and follow them determinedly—and the next moment the taxi had whirled away, and she and Calligan were left alone in the wet, chilly night.

Looked at Eva

"Well, that settles it," said Calligan ruefully. He looked down at Eva, but she had drawn the big collar of her coat closely round her throat, and he could hardly see her face. The rain was teeming down again, and splashing up from the pavement in miniature waterspouts.

"There'll be no chance of a taxi yet, I'm afraid," Calligan said. "We'd better go back inside and wait."

He put his hand through Eva's arm and drew her back into the wide corridor from which they had just come.

When a Girl Marries

By Ann Lisle

Copyright, 1921, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

THERE isn't any one in all the world I desired less to see than the woman who hailed me with her insolent questions as I started to leave the Walgrave.

But as I turned to parry her innuendoes I realized half-humorously that this was just the coincidence I might have feared. Mrs. Varden, my impudent interlocutor, lived at the hotel even in the dear, long-ago days when Jim and I stayed there. I had plenty of experience then to warn me that she is the elderly feminine edition of that unpleasant masculine type known as the "lounge Hazard." Her over-dressed, hard-paint, vividly marcelled figure, with its "blued" white hair, was always prowling about the lobby in the older days. Evidently she was still at her old habit of hanging around the office. But I was astonished at the early start she'd made.

Bade Good Morning

"Good morning, Mrs. Varden," I murmured, longing for enough of Virginia's icy hauteur to put the woman in her place, even while I felt sub-consciously that she'd be a particularly undesirable enemy just now. "How early you get down to your beloved lobby. It gives you a long day, doesn't it?"

Instead of being affronted and flouncing away, the woman persisted:

"I'm glad I got down early enough for a word with you, my dear. Suppose we have a little chat while you're waiting for that handsome young husband of yours. Sub-letting your apartment and coming here?"

"Oh, no," I uttered, elaborately omitting my pronouns, "not at all. Just here for the night! Staying out on an important matter now. Good morning."

"Oh, I can't let you go like this," she scolded. "You'd slip away from me in this big city if I didn't pin you right down to an engagement this minute. I must hear all about you. Is that dare-devil of a Tom Mason still hanging around? What have you done with the handsome English officer who used to take you to dinner when your husband was away? If by any chance he's away now and you're—lonely, I know some adorable men I'd love to have you meet. How about dinner tonight?"

Not Staying in Town

"Thanks so much, Mrs. Varden," I said firmly. "But I'm not staying in town tonight. As I said, I'm with my husband's sister. And I merely stopped the night here in order to reach my husband's office bright and early this morning. Now, if you haven't any more questions, I'll be running along."

At this she bridled. She'd held her annoyance within bounds as long as there was a chance that her self-control would secure for her some gratifying information. But now she spat out her words at me with the venom which always characterised her conversation.

"Oh, yes, of course, run along! I always thought Jim Harrison was the type of man to need a woman's help in managing his affairs. Naturally if he prances off about his own concerns and leaves you in charge of his office I suppose there's be a great influx of an—clients."

"I'm not"—— I began and pulled myself up short.

This Is Music Week

Without Music This Would Be a Dull World, and INSPIRATION Would Be Gone.

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

"The man that hath no music in himself,
Nor is not mov'd with concord of sweet sounds,
Is fit for treasons, stratagems, and spoils;
The motions of his spirit are dull as night,
And his affections dark as Erebus:
Let no such man be trusted. Mark the music."

The Merchant of Venice—Act V.—Scene I.

In churches, theatres and at many special concerts and in many stores throughout the United States this week will be devoted to music, the important work of arousing interest in music and in what it MEANS.

Before there was any speech or distinct thought on this earth, there was music, of the birds, of insects and of savages, for before they possessed speech they developed rhythm, harmony. Talking came after, and music helped it and hastened it.

Before this earth itself existed, according to the belief of the ancients, there was the "music of the spheres," a cosmic harmony, caused by the suns and planets in their motions, and now beyond the reach of our feeble ears. We may hear it later in future ages.

Music is the language of inspiration. Its effect upon the mind, and upon the body itself, is magical, instantaneous, and uplifting. It increases thought, feeling and capacity for both.

There is something wrong, as Shakespeare says in the quotation above, with the man who has no music within himself.

He need not necessarily be fit for stratagems and spoils, but he is apt to be as dull as a turnip, which is worse.

It is not necessary to be a musician, or actively musical in order to have music in the soul, for most important is APPRECIATION of music. The great Wagner was as poor a piano player as you would want to hear.

You can judge a nation's civilization by its music. The Italians, with the oldest civilization, are the most musical of nations. Fortunately for Italy, Italian children from their birth hear much GOOD MUSIC, and very little, if any, of the atrocious, so-called "music" that destroys all musical values.

The difference between a savage and a civilized being is the difference between the monotonous pounding of a tom-tom and the magnificent music of a perfectly made violin or, highest of all, a well-trained voice.

Join in this national MUSIC WEEK, by interesting yourself in music.

Fortunately for the world, marvellous human invention has done for music what Guttenberg with his printing press did for the knowledge written in books.

There was a time when every book had to be written out by hand, and few had access to the knowledge.

There was a time when music could be produced only by the human voice, or by the hand in direct contact with some musical instrument. Now, thanks to miraculous methods of preserving the human voice, reproducing it indefinitely, and of preserving as on the printed page all the instrumental work of the greatest musicians, there is put within the reach of every family the world's greatest music and the greatest artists to interpret it. The greatest musicians can be summoned to sing and play before you, as though by the power of Aladdin's lamp.

Those that have talent should DEVELOP it. Parents should give their children the opportunity to know and create music for themselves, if they have talent, choosing carefully the instrument suited to the child, insisting on the best teaching.

There is no excuse today for the man that allows his children to grow up deprived of the blessing of good music, its stimulating effect upon imagination, its ennobling influence upon character, its inspiration that develops the mind.

To live without music is a curse, and to live without the VERY BEST music, now that it is within the reach of all, is folly and stupid indifference.

You remember how, in Revelations, 18-22, the "mighty angel took up a stone like a mighty millstone, and cast it into the sea, saying, Thus with violence shall that great city Babylon be thrown down, and shall be found no more at all."

Tragically the angel foretold destruction and doom for Babylon. And what was the first calamity that he predicted for the great and wicked city? "And the voice of harpers, and musicians, and of pipers, and trumpeters shall be heard no more at all in thee."

It would be a sad day for this world if the voice of music should disappear. Music is the world's great inspiration, conveying the mother's love to the mind of her child before it can understand any spoken word, and consoling old age.

Play your part in this, the nation's "Music Week." Take your family to hear good music, and BRING THE BEST MUSIC INTO YOUR HOME. Make it part of your family's daily life.

Americans Who Are False to Their Birthright

An effort is being made to induce Congress to prohibit the exportation of arms to foreign countries. The avowed object is to stop the sale of arms in China.

But this is not the real object of the proposed new law.

The real object is to stop the shipping of arms to Ireland and to India and to Egypt and to Mesopotamia, where Great Britain now keeps large armies to hold weaker peoples in subjection to her laws.

Ireland is in open revolt and has made more headway in disconcerting British equanimity since the armistice than our forefathers made in the earlier years of their revolution.

The massacre of 5,000 unarmed people in India, assembled in open-air mass meeting to demand that Great Britain keep her promise made during the war to grant the people of India home rule, has changed that demand into a cry for independence.

Thus the history of the British Empire constantly repeats itself.

In 1775 we demanded home rule, and British tyranny changed the demand into one for independence. British military methods made us reject all offers of compromise.

In 1916 Ireland only wanted home rule, but British militarism —which so many eminent Englishmen and statesmen deplore and denounce—has made Irishmen determined to have nothing but absolute independence.

The British Government understands the situation and is preparing for it. Arms these oppressed people must have in their last resort to gain liberty. America is asked to forget her own history and to repress the natural human sympathy for human beings struggling to be free. The fact that Ireland has struggled for 600 years shows that she has the unconquerable spirit that alone makes a nation.

BRITAIN FASTENS OPIUM ON SUBJECTS

Ellen La Motte Declares Spread of Drug Evil by English Government Through Her Colonies Is Menace to America

This is the third and last of a series of articles taken from a little volume, "The Opium Monopoly," published by Macmillan, in which Ellen La Motte, an American woman, exposes the horrors of the opium evil. It is the truth, compiled by Miss La Motte's actual investigation in the Far East, and by her study of the British Blue Books.

ANOTHER British possession is the Island of Mauritius, where opium is used widely. The statistics for British India, Eighth Issue, show that in 1916-17, 120 chests were exported to the Island from India. This is double the amount exported in 1915-16, and shows a steady increase in consumption.

British North Borneo depends partly upon opium for revenue. In 1916 the official reports show a net revenue under the head of excise of $627,225, "an increase in the net revenue of $169,147, due to government taking over the sole control of the sale of chandu (smoking opium) and the collection of other excise duties, formerly farmed."

Japan Free From Drug

The western world is not free from the use of opium. British Guiana, in South America, shows opium imports in 1915 to the amount of $22,405. This sum will undoubtedly increase in the future, since Argentina is now feeling the effects of the drug, which finds its way over into the bordering countries. Argentina is fighting the drug evil, but without much effect.

Japan is the only Oriental country which is not drugged. It is the only independent country in Asia. The Philippines, to the credit of America, does not permit the sale of opium. Perhaps much of the anti-Japanese propaganda may be traced to the fact that Japan guards her people against the drug habit as carefully as do western peoples. Because, according to the English arguments, opium is a good thing for Orientals.

The Inter-Church World Movement published a news item on February 7, in which Japan is charged with the distribution of opium and its derivatives in China, in defiance of the Chinese laws. Dr. F. W. Bible of the Foreign Surgery Department speaks of length on the drug menace in China.

"In spite of the fact that cultivation of the opium poppy has been forbidden by the government, disturbed conditions throughout the republic have led to the fostering of poppy growing by some of the revolutionary leaders because of the large revenues accruing from it. But the real drug peril," Dr. Bible says, "lies in the import of morphine, cocaine and other refined forms of opium. Japanese merchants are flooding the Chinese market with hypodermic syringes." . . .

Miss La Motte tells of such charges also coming from other sources. Putnam Weale and other English students of Oriental affairs continually charge Japan with the sin of smuggling the opium into China.

"This is true," says Miss La Motte. "But Japan does not manufacture syringes. She does not cultivate the poppy plant or manufacture opium. Morphia is not manufactured in any appreciable quantity in the East. The bulk of the manufacture takes place in England, Germany and Austria. And now Germany and Austria are out of the game. In the opium traffic, two firms in Edinburgh and one in London are engaged. The Board of Trade of Great Britain shows that, during 1914, fourteen tons of morphia was exported from Great Britain. Figures later compiled show that this amount has risen to twenty tons."

Other evidence clearly shows that now much of the morphia which reaches Japan for distribution in China passes through the United States. All of the drugs do not pass through the United States. Much of it remains here. The drug evil in New York city alone is well known. To quote again from Miss La Motte:

"The number of drug addicts in America today is fairly startling. The number is variously estimated in New York city alone as from 15,000 to 100,000. It is said that there may be 1,000,000 in the country."

She further shows that we cannot grapple with this problem if we ignore the source of supply and distribution and the reasons for immense distribution of opium on the part of the British opium monopoly.

America does not grow the poppy plant; it does not manufacture opium or drugs. Yet today the drug evil is a menace to America.

"The anti-narcotic laws on our statute books are powerless to protect us. With Canada, a British province, to the north, and all Mexico on the south, what chance have we against such exposure?"

Menace to America

She concludes her great work, which is invaluable, by stating:

"The opium monopoly was not established for any humane or altruistic purpose. . . That monopoly was established not to relieve pain and suffering, by creating drug victims by the thousand. It is these hundreds of thousands of customers that are profitable. The menace to America lies in the large amounts of opium which are smuggled into the country for this purpose. . . .

"Our politicians and our diplomats have been too careful all these years to speak of this business, for fear of offending a powerful nation. But we feel that the time has now come to speak. England has been relying upon our silence to 'get away with it,' upon our ignorance, and upon that silence which gives consent. But in this new changed world, reborn out of blood and agony and the Great War, is it not time to practice some of the decencies which we have proclaimed so loudly?"

Drugged peoples are usually docile and submissive, says Miss La Motte. Perhaps that is the secret of much of the successful colonization, about which we hear so much, is her further observation. Why, she asks, is the white race sedulously protected from such vices, while the subject races are not worth protecting.

These are words which cover up the truth. "Successful colonization" and the "White Man's Burden" are some of them.

"It would seem at first glance," says Miss La Motte, "as if subject races were fair game—if there is money in it. Subject races, dependents, who have no vote, no share in the government and who are powerless to protect themselves—fair game for exploitation. Is this double-dealing what we mean when we speak of 'our responsibility to backward nations, or of the 'sacred trust of civilization,' or still again what we refer to 'the white man's burden?'"

A Holland Dame

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

I BOAST the bluest of blue blood,
For I'm a Holland Dame.
Our house was founded ere the flood,
From Amsterdam I came.
In spite of snubs, rebuffs and sneers,
I rank above the highest peers,
There's even a sapphire tint to my tears,
For I'm a Holland Dame.

I pride myself on being Dutch,
For I'm a Holland Dame.
It gives my position a needed touch,
For I'm a Holland Dame.
A German is only a parvenu,
No better indeed than a Yank or a Jew.
The Dutch have the only blood that's blue,
For I'm a Holland Dame.

I need not bother about myself,
For I'm a Holland Dame,
I have ancestors laid on the shelf,
For I'm a Holland Dame.
My wonderful ancient family tree
Will prove that I am all that I ought to be;
'Tis a bank of bones to draw on, see?
For I'm a Holland Dame.

CIVILIZERS WILL NOT FUNCTION ALONE

By The Spectator

THERE are four great civilizers:

Conscience, or the moral sense;

Intelligence, or the valuation of Truth over expediency;

The esthetic sense, and

Work, or the co-operative instinct.

These might be otherwise expressed in four words: Religion, Science, Art and Business.

No one of these is sufficient by itself. It needs the balance of the others.

Each has been tried alone, and the results have always been lopsided.

Church Dominant

In the Middle Ages, and after, civilization was almost identified with religion. The church was all dominant.

It did not work. A strong hierarchy was developed. But the masses were not improved. Absolutism flourished. Life was beautiful in spots only. The general texture of humanity remained a dirty gray.

The scientist likewise, when he has his own way and is unhampered by the harmonizing influences from other sources, tends to grow hard and cold. Life must be more than algebraic formulae and test tubes if it is to be worth while.

A world devoted entirely to art would be very inefficient and impractical.

And we could hardly contemplate humanity managed wholly by the business man and for dollars and cents as a desirable thing.

Would Not Hold Together

It must have the religionist, the moralist, the ethical teacher, because men have conscience, because their profoundest instinct is that of sensing right and wrong, and because they are creatures of the infinite and have their inextinguishable dreams, hopes and fancies.

A civilization in which there is no recognition of the authority of righteousness and no hatred of injustice and wickedness simply would not hold together.

And a civilization without Science is equally impossible.

Truth is the only thing that will work, and the one aim of Science is Truth.

ASTRAL VAMPIRES

AND the mystic board weejees the hilarious item that the next world is loaded with astral vamps, celestial cabarets and hereafter blonde Lorelei.

The man who skids not from the straight and dotted line on this earth will eyeglually get a reservation in Heaven. But he won't be safe. According to the reliable weejee rumors, temptation will bombard him from all angles.

We get the information from a European scientist who has been listening in on the angels' party wire. Can't believe until we get American verification. Under the present blue laws, America is much nearer to Heaven and should grab the first carload of occult gossip.

Can you pipe an astral vamp with a bird of paradise halo, white ostrich feather wings and golden high heels? It's going to be a tough Summer resort for bachelors who only drew small pay while on earth.

The old-fashioned theory was that angels were all men. Which accounted for the mistake of calling it Heaven. But this European scientist dumps over the apple cart of ancient theology and spills the beans. He states that there are vampire angels lurking north of the pearly clouds and the points skyward as endorsement of his merry theory. It sounds too good to be false. By living correctly on this earth it will be possible to achieve immortal life and look up ethereal telephone numbers in a golden phone book.

The old promised reward for a good life in this world was the threat of a good life in the next. The man who did not look upon the alcohol when it was wood was the man whose spirit would flutter north.

But since this benevolent scientist has established his dope, all the boys will go out gargling the wood alcohol so they can get there quick.

BETTER TO STICK TO WHAT YOU DO WELL

By Damon Runyon

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

IF you can do it better than anyone else, why not continue?

A reasonable proposition, is it not?

Yet it is human nature to want to do something other than the thing one is doing, no matter how well one may be doing that particular thing.

I reach for illustration into the field of sport.

Hal Chase was the greatest first baseman of his time. He was a marvel of grace and dexterity in that position. No other man was even close to him. Yet it was Chase's great ambition to become a second baseman.

He was left-handed. The natural law of baseball militates against a left-hander playing second base well. There have been few successful left-handed second basemen.

Proved an Incubus

But Chase, greatest of first basemen, insisted on trying to play second, where he made a mediocre showing. At first base he was of enormous value to a team, at second he was an incubus.

Tyrus Raymond Cobb was one of the greatest hitters and base runners the game of baseball has ever known. Yet Cobb, not content with the kingship of his own realm, cherished an ambition to pitch.

That is human nature. Every person, able to do one thing well, probably secretly cherishes the thought that they can do other things just as well. And the other thing somehow always seems more attractive than the thing one is doing.

Search your own mind and see if this is not true. Your own occupation, however lucrative, doubtless seems pale and uninteresting compared to something others are doing. But if you can do it better than anyone else, why not continue?

The greatest single purpose man I ever met in the world of sport is Babe Ruth, the king of the baseball sluggers. Ruth was originally a pitcher, but he always cherished the ambition to be a hitter. He persisted in that ambition until he become the greatest batsman in the history of the game. Having reached that pinnacle, however, Ruth's mind now dwells frequently on pitching.

Wants to Pitch

He often asks his manager to let him have slab duty, though it is not certain that he could again pitch up to his old form.

This form of mental unrest produces vast upheavals at times. Some fellow who may be the greatest soldier or statesman of his time gets the idea that he would make a splendid king or president, and thus we have wars and bloodshed.

It is, of course, a laudable ambition to desire to better one's self. The man who is satisfied to stand still is hopeless. But having found something you can do better than anyone else, why not continue?
